PMO SEEKS ACTION AGAINST NMC MEMBERS FOR NON-COMPLIANCE

The PMO has sought appropriate action on a complaint against non-disclosure of assets by National Medical Commission (NMC) members

RTI PETITION LANDS THEM IN TROUBLE

NMC members have not disclosed their assets on the official website, thus violating the NMC Act 2019, said Kerala-based ophthalmologist Dr K V Babu, who has filed a Right To Information petition with the PMO. The PMO has asked the Union Health Ministry to look into the issue. Babu said NMC was stonewalling his requests, while the ministry was evasive

India captain Rohit Sharma and his Australia counterpart Pat Cummins pose with the World Cup trophy on Saturday | ICC

All roads lead to Ahmedabad

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @ Ahmedabad

THE Gandhi Ashram, as one can imagine, is a popular destination in Ahmedabad. Outside of it, the Sabarmati Riverfront sees people of all demographics milling about, especially in the night. If it's neither, the taste buds take over as the city hosts some of the biggest vegetarian thalis in service. It's so popular that Rohit Sharma, Shreyas Iyer and the support staff paid a visit to one such restaurant on Friday night.

> It will be nice to win it because we have worked hard. Again, we don't want to get too excited. A balanced atmosphere, balanced thinking at this stage will be nice
> Rohit Sharma

However, Gate 1 of the Narendra Modi Stadium has dwarfed all of the above-mentioned places in terms of the hottest destination in town. Demand for tickets has gone through the roof. On one reselling website, each ticket was being sold for ₹8.32 lakh. Now, the Stadium is a pride of place for many. It has hosted a political rally. It has hosted an IPL final. It has hosted a pink-ball Test. It has hosted an entire T20I series. A World Cup final, though, exists in a bubble of its own. One only needed to listen to Pat Cummins to understand that. "In terms of pinnacle, I think it's right up there," he said. "It's got the longest history. You only get a shot at it every four years. So, even if you have a long career, you might only play in two of these events. 2015 is still a career highlight for me. If we win, we might pip it." P17

Surya Kiran to shine over today's final

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

THE Surya Kiran Aerobatic Team, known for stealing a million hearts at Aero India in Bengaluru, will now be the showstopper at the Narendra Modi Stadium in Gujarat on Sunday afternoon before India takes on Australia in the final of the ICC Cricket World Cup 2023.

The nine-aircraft team formed in 1996 will enthrall over 1,32,000 spectators at the stadium. "The team is all set to showcase its zeal and even take away the thunder with the aerial aerobatic display where the final match of ICC Men's World Cup 2023 will be held," said a pilot.

According to the BCCI, the aerobatic display will be held from 1.35pm to 1.50pm soon after the national anthem. It is for the first time the pilots are performing for a closed gathering. "The thrill is not just the display, but the close synchronised formations that are done. The existing formations have been modified in such a manner that they will be visible to the audience sitting at the stadium as their visual bubble will be small compared to ones who see it at the air shows or from the runways. The team has specially trained in Bidar and at the location (stadium) for this adjusted for the visuals of the audience," an IAF officer said. All the sorties the Surya Kiran team is known for, including the barrel roll maneuver, victory formation and the missing man formation, will be showcased along with its signature -- tricolour and heart formations.

BRO WORKS ON VERTICAL HOLE OPTION AT TUNNEL

NARENDRA SETHI @ Dehradun

With a horizontal rescue shaft into the rubble of an under-construction tunnel in Uttarkashi getting stuck due to drilling equipment failure by more than a day, officials scampered to expedite other options parallelly, including a platform for a vertical hole to evacuate 41 labourers stranded behind the debris.

The headcount of the stuck labourers went up by one on Saturday, embarrassing officials and annoying relatives of the workers. The 41st labourer was identified as Deepak Kumar, a resident of Gijas Tola in Muzaffarpur, Bihar.

The Border Roads Organisation (BRO) hopes to build an alternative route to the tunnel by Sunday afternoon for drilling the vertical hole. "One option is to make a four-six inch long hole to provide essential items to the trapped people," said R S Rao of the Directorate General Border Roads. If possible, a 3 ft diameter hole will also be made to evacuate the labourers. But other experts are wary as they fear it could trigger further collapse from the roof of the tunnel.

Other plans on the table include perpendicular drilling, said Bhaskar Khulbe, former advisor to the prime minister and now OSD in the Uttarakhand government.

The American drilling machine that is now dysfunctional at the collapse site

With the US-made drilling machine developing a snag, a similar high-performance auger machine from Indore was being assembled at the accident site to resume horizontal drilling, officials said.

Meanwhile, Deputy Secretary in the Prime Minister's Office Mangesh Dabral reached Silkyara to take stock of the situation. Also, an expert from an Australian consultancy company that is associated with Rail Vikas Nigam Ltd has reached the site.

With anxiety mounting as the labourers have been stranded in the tunnel for a week, angry workers led by advocate Prashant Prasad staged a protest against the project promoter and developer for delay and failure in the rescue.

The post of Speaker above any religion, says Khader

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mangaluru

LEGISLATIVE Assembly Speaker UT Khader on Saturday took a veiled dig at Housing Minister BZ Zameer Ahmed Khan and said the Speaker's post is above religion.

Zameer's statement that the Congress had appointed a Muslim as the Assembly Speaker and senior BJP legislators now have to bow before him in the House led to a controversy, drawing sharp criticism from the Opposition. Khader said he was not appointed as the Speaker based on his religion. "As the Assembly Speaker, I am not associated with any political party. I do not want to comment on any individual's statement. This post has nothing to do with any political party, caste or religion. I work as per our Constitution. If anybody respects me, it is for my post and I will ensure to protect its sanctity," he said.

Meanwhile, MP Nalin Kumar Kateel sought Zameer's resignation. "Zameer has disrespected the Speaker's post by painting it with a religious colour. It shows Zameer's mindset. Chief Minister Siddaramaiah must seek Zameer's resignation," he said.

OpenAI fires Sam Altman, Murati named interim CEO

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

CHATGPT-creator OpenAI pushed its co-founder and CEO Sam Altman out of the firm, accusing him of not being consistently candid on his communications with the board.

"The board no longer has confidence in his ability to continue leading OpenAI," the company said. It has appointed Mira Murati, OpenAI's chief technology officer, to an interim CEO role effective immediately.

Besides Altman, OpenAI's Greg Brockman was also removed from the board. "Sam and I are shocked and saddened by what the board did today," Brockman said on X.

OpenAI was founded as a non-profit in 2015, and Infosys was one of its first backers. In 2019, Microsoft made investment in it.

Altman was in India in June and said AI chatbot has witnessed several early adopters in the country.

The tech industry was surprised with the firing of Altman who is considered a tech wizard.

"This decision, while bold, has left many in the tech industry both surprised and contemplative about the future direction of AI," former Twitter India head Manish Maheshwari told this paper.

"The tech world is increasingly grappling with the dilemma of aligning technological innovation with ethical considerations. OpenAI's recent move signals a shift towards prioritising ethical AI development over immediate commercial benefits." P12

CHILDREN OF A LESSER GOD

HIV-infected orphans who are forsaken by their kin, find a home at Navasanidhya, a centre set up by a missionary

FIROZ ROZINDAR @ Vijayapura

WHEN Annapurna (name changed) was eight years old, her father brought her to Navasanidhya, a home for HIV-infected children; he was to later die of AIDS. She said he left her at the centre as he was unable to take care of his lone child after her mother's demise.

Annapurna, who was infected with HIV at birth, was a resident of a village in Vijayapura taluk. Today, at the age of 17, she is completing pre-university at a private college here. "I don't even remember when my mother died as I was an infant then," she said. Now, after many years at the centre, the people here have not only become her family but it has also given her a new lease of dignified life.

"If I was not brought here, I would have been forced to marry at an early age, without knowing I was suffering from HIV. I am grateful for having been brought here," she said. Annapurna wishes to take up LLB and become an advocate.

Similar is the heartrending story of Sridevi (name changed), a resident of Almel taluk of the district, who contracted HIV at birth. She too was brought to the centre when she was around six years old. "Since my father and mother died early, my grandmother took care of me for some time. She brought me here because of financial constraints," she said.

Sridevi doesn't remember much about her parents. Like Annapurna, she is also doing PU and desires to become a teacher. "I have no idea what my life would have been like if I had not come here. Today, the centre is my home and my family," she said.

The fate of orphans

Annapurna and Sridevi are two of the 34 HIV-infected girls residing in Navasanidhya, a centre run by a Christian missionary. It was started in 2008 to provide free shelter, education, food and career to such children. "What prompted us to open this home was a report that many children infected with HIV became orphans, mainly in rural areas, over a decade ago. A majority came from poor financial backgrounds and had little or no education. Because of fast-spreading HIV among parents due to lack of knowledge, the children were getting infected in the womb itself. Children were forced to live on the mercy of relatives," said Sister Julie Cluny, head of the centre.

The missionary decided to open a home for such unfortunate children and give them a dignified life in society. "We started with one child and gradually, the number started growing, with more children from the district and neighbouring districts joining," she said.

Till date, the centre has sheltered over 70 children suffering from HIV. When the centre was first started, boys and girls were in the same home. Later, following a government order, the home for boys was moved to a different locality, where around 28 boys reside.

The centre also ensures the children get treatment for HIV. "The District Government Hospital supplies free medicines, we take care of their health for other ailments. Since such children essentially need nutritious food to maintain their immunity against any infections, we take a lot of care to give protein-rich food. As far as education is concerned, based on their age, we send them to schools and colleges and take care of expenditure," she said.

Though such centres are to admit children from the age of six itself, Sister Cluny said sometimes they are forced to admit even younger children who have no one to take care of them. Such children are admitted after obtaining permission from the Child Welfare Committee (CWC). As per norms, the centre can keep the children only till the age of 18, after which they are to be sent to hostels run by the government in places such as Bengaluru, and gain higher education or undergo skill development training.

Settling down

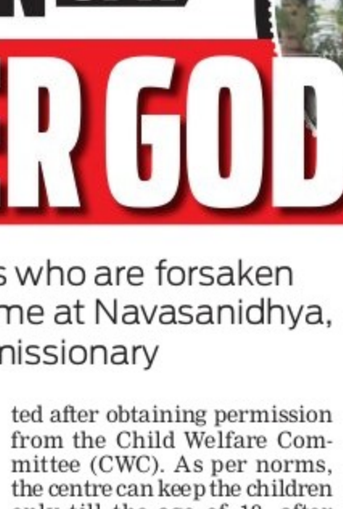
Sr Cluny claimed that four HIV-infected children have completed higher education and are working as teachers. Five girls are pursuing graduation in Bengaluru, whose expenses are taken care of by the centre.

"Since an HIV-infected person cannot marry a normal person, we have helped find HIV-infected grooms for four of our girls, and they are now settled with their families," she said.

Most of the children have only some close relatives who they meet. What is dismaying is that often, even relatives don't show interest in meeting these children. A few who have relatives visit them during holidays," she said. Even when they turn 18, and the centre has to send them back to their families, they are not accepted.

"We found that family members either refused to take them or kept them unwillingly. The girls came back weeping to us. We had no choice but to accommodate them," she said.

Sister Cluny said HIV-infected children can live a long and healthy life if they take medicines properly and maintain good health. "We tell them that even HIV-infected people can live a normal life. Since such persons cannot have physical contact with normal persons, we guide and educate them about this crucial aspect," she said.



Till date, Navasanidhya has sheltered over 70 children suffering from HIV, and who are orphaned at a very young age, and ensure that they have a fulfilling life | EXPRESS

37-yr-old Avinash Kamath from Udupi is on a mission to collect old, unused footwear and recycle them to provide them to needy children

Best foot forward

PRAKASH SAMAGA @ Udupi

HERE is a man who has put his best foot forward by embarking on a mission not just to help the needy, but also safeguard the environment.

Thirty-seven-year-old Avinash Kamath collects old footwear from people in Udupi and give them to GreenSole, a Navi Mumbai-based company that recycles and creates new footwear. He has named his mission 'Nadige' which means 'walk' in Kannada.

Kamath, an event planner and anchor, says his campaign serves two purposes — discarding old footwear in the right manner and putting them to better use by recycling them. He aims to give the refurbished footwear to 4,000 needy children in Udupi.

The Nadige campaign will be held on the premises of MGM College in Udupi from November 30 to December 2. GreenSole also recycles bags, mats and pouches, keeping them away from landfills.

> There are several kinds of charity. Some donate money to provide education. Some donate land to the landless. Nadige came to my mind when I saw many children without footwear
> Avinash Kamath

Avinash Kamath (extreme left) with the co-founders of GreenSole

Kamath, who also wears the hat of a voice-over artiste, says he was impressed by a few videos he came across online on GreenSole, and thus 'Nadgie' was born.

"We have many initiatives to collect clothes, hair for wigs and more. Then I thought of addressing the issue of unused old footwear as well. I visited the GreenSole plant in Maharashtra last month and spent over half-a-day with Shriyans Bhandari and Ramesh Dhami, co-founders of GreenSole. During the visit, I also had the privilege of launching Nadige's poster. I have extended an invitation to them to come to Udupi. We have identified children who will receive the recycled footwear that day," Kamath adds.

Kamath has dedicated several months on ideating this campaign and partnered with the Chosen Generation Charitable Trust. "Formal and sports shoes, slippers, sandals, foam, and rubber shoes will be collected. Various organisations and associations have the opportunity to collect these shoes within their local communities and then deliver them to the designated collection centre," he adds.

Kamath has been approaching various social organisations and his aim is to collect 4,000 footwear. "There are several kinds of charity. Some donate money to provide education. Some donate land to the landless. Nadige came to my mind when I saw many children without footwear," he elaborates.

On GreenSole, Kamath says Bhandari and Dhami, who are sportspersons, used to worry about discarding their seven to eight pairs of shoes annually. "They thought of venturing into R&D to know how old shoes can be put to best use without burdening the environment. GreenSole was born then," Kamath adds.

Bhandari says Kamath's initiative is commendable. "People can come together for a good cause through this drive," he says. The used footwear will be collected on the premises of MGM College, Udupi. Shaini Sathyabhama, president of the women's wing of Kerala Cultural and Social Centre, Udupi, says discarding old footwear is a big challenge because even the waste collectors reject them saying it will burden the landfills."

Kamath says that if old footwear is given to waste collectors in urban places, they will dump it in landfills. To stop this, better usage of the used shoes is required. "We can contribute this way to a better environment," Kamath concludes.

World Cup final: Live screening at dist stadiums

MARX TEJASWI @ Shivamogga

In an exciting move for cricket enthusiasts, the Department of Youth Empowerment and Sports is gearing up to broadcast the heart-pounding final of the ICC Men's Cricket World Cup 2023. The clash between India and Australia will be beamed live to district stadiums across the state this Sunday, offering a front-row experience for the general public, students in department-run hostels, and sports enthusiasts.

The battleground for this thrilling encounter is set in Ahmedabad, promising an unforgettable spectacle. LED screens will be strategically installed at the district stadium, following a directive from the commissioner of the department to all assistant directors in the district offices of the department. The department, in collaboration with MC&A, will ensure the necessary facilities for the live telecast. Manjunathswamy MT, assistant director of the department, informed The New Sunday Express that seating arrangements and drinking water provisions will be available at Nehru Stadium in Shivamogga.

The police department has been requested to provide adequate security throughout the duration of the match. However, sources within the department revealed that the last-minute directive to arrange for LED screens has presented a significant challenge in some parts of the state. "Many clubs have already pre-booked LED screens from suppliers, making it exceedingly difficult for us to secure them. Nevertheless, we have managed to procure a sizable LED screen," said a department source. India has won the Cricket World Cup twice, once in 1983 and then in 2011. India finished as runners-up in 2003. On the other hand, Australia won five ODI Cricket World Cups - 1987, 1999, 2003, 2007, 2015. Sunday's final match is expected to be a thrilling contest between two cricketing giants.

Man accused of firing rocket at boy's pvt parts

PRAVEEN KUMAR @ Bengaluru

A complaint has been registered against a 24-yr-old man identified as Mallikarjun for allegedly injuring a 10-year-old boy by firing a rocket at his private parts. The incident took place on Tuesday, and a complaint was filed two days later.

Both, the injured and the accused are residents of Hosanagara, and a complaint was filed by the boy's aunt. The boy informed his family that the neighbour lit a rocket and 'deliberately aimed' it at the boy's private parts. This resulted in heated argument and exchange of fisticuffs between both the families.

The boy's mother went to question the accused, Mallikarjun, who then allegedly punched her in the face. He allegedly picked a fight again, and threatened them of dire consequences.

Mallikarjun filed a counter complaint against the boy's mother, and family. In his complaint, he stated that he had not burst any crackers, and was just seeing children burst crackers. He also stated that along with him, his 18-year-old sister was also beaten up, and he had to take her for treatment.

"Complaint and counter complaint was registered on Thursday afternoon. Statements from both the parties have been recorded. The boy is out of danger, and the boy continues to claim that Mallikarjun was the one who lit the rocket firecracker. The case is under investigation," said an officer.

Police have asked both parties to submit medical bills to ascertain if their claims are true. Byappanahalli police have registered the complaints.

Bizman gets life term for shooting lawyer dead

YATHIRAJU @ Bengaluru

SUSPECTING the wife's character, installing GPS in her car without her knowledge, open dying declaration given by her before committing suicide, and extra-judicial confession made by accused Rajesh G played a vital role in landing him in jail with the city court sentencing him to rigorous life imprisonment for murdering lawyer Amit Keshavamurthy by shooting him in the chest with a pistol.

Businessman Rajesh's (38) wife Shruthi Gowda, working as a panchayat development officer, had hanged herself at a lodge, unable to tolerate the death of Amit who was declared dead when she took him to a hospital in her car, after Rajesh shot him in Soladevanahalli police limits, in 2017. Before committing suicide at a lodge near the hospital, Shruthi had told her cousin Shwetha over the phone to take care of her two children as she no longer wanted to live, saying the life of an innocent person, Amit, had been lost. The court considered it an open dying declaration.

"Here the person (victim) is the eyewitness to the crime, and the exclusion of her statement would tend to defeat the ends of justice. A dying declaration is considered to be credible and trustworthy, based upon the general belief that most people, who know that they are about to die do not lie," said Hosamani Pundalik, the First Additional District and Sessions Judge, Bengaluru Rural District.

The court said Rajesh made an extra-judicial confession to Shruthi's father Bettaswami, who deposed that on the day of the incident, Rajesh called him around 2.55 pm saying he had shot Amit near Acharya College when Amit and Shruthi were sitting in a Swift car. This confession is clearly admissible under Section 6 of the Evidence Act, the court added.

Sentencing Rajesh to rigorous life imprisonment under Section 302 of IPC, and to pay Rs 1 lakh fine, the court also sentenced him to simple imprisonment for four months and imposed Rs 2,000 fine under Section 30 of the Arms Act. The sentence will run concurrently and the period Rajesh spent in judicial custody is set off as against the sentence against him, the court ordered. He has been in judicial custody since his arrest on Jan 14, 2017.

HC won't quash proceedings against Zameer

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

IN a setback to Housing Minister Zameer Ahmed Khan, the Karnataka High Court on Saturday refused to quash the criminal proceedings initiated against him by the ACB, for allegedly possessing assets disproportionate to his known sources of income to the tune of Rs 87.44 crore since 2005.

In June 2019, the ACB registered a case against him after it received a report from the ED on certain transactions between Zameer and Mohammed Mansoor Khan, promoter of I-Monetary Advisory Private Limited.

The ED recovered a statement from Mansoor Khan that he had paid Rs 63 crore to Zameer, including Rs 9.38 crore to purchase a plot, cash of Rs 29.38 crore and Rs 25 crore as loan, which was not returned. After this, the ACB searched the premises of Zameer in Aug 2021, and seized documents which revealed he is in possession of assets disproportionate to his known sources of income.

PRAVEEN KUMAR @ Bengaluru

DISAPPOINTED after an argument with her husband, for not being with her on Deepavali day, a 21-yr-old woman reportedly died by suicide, while on a video call with him. It was later revealed in the postmortem report that the woman was pregnant when she committed suicide. The deceased has been identified as R Devika, a resident of Bharathinagar.

She was on a video call with her husband who was at his mother's house, and refused to go home to his wife. She hanged herself during a heated argument, and her husband rushed home to find her dead.

The incident took place on Tuesday evening, in Devanahalli subdivision police limits, where the deceased's brother, R Darshan, filed a complaint against his brother in law, Umesh. In his complaint, Darshan stated that his sister committed suicide as she was unable to bear her husband's harassment. Speaking to TNSE, Darshan said, "Instead of stopping my sister from committing suicide, Umesh watched her dying, live. Only after she had hanged herself did he go to check if she had died, and later informed the family. The postmortem report stated that she was pregnant. Revenue Minister Krishna Byre Gowda has written to Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, seeking her appointment to present Karnataka's Kharif Drought Memorandum. "... there are certain concerns, if not effectively addressed while allocating NDRF assistance, which will drastically affect the socioeconomic wellbeing of more than 62 lakh small and marginal farmers (SMF) of Karnataka," he wrote

'ONCE INDUSTRIES SET UP, GOVT IGNORES THEM'

FROM issues faced by industries to the imminent need to shift focus beyond Bengaluru and changes industries are looking forward to, Federation of Karnataka Chambers of Commerce & Industry (KFCCI) president Ramesh Chandra Lahoti speaks about various issues in an interaction with the editors and staff of The New Sunday Express. Excerpts:

As FKCCI president, what are your top priorities, and how are you approaching your role to address them?
It has been a privilege for me to be part of FKCCI for the last 20 years. I have headed various committees. I am discussing issues faced by industries with ministers concerned both at the Centre and the state. I was in civic affairs and the problems faced by apartment owners were addressed. My work made me president of FKCCI.

The government is implementing various initiatives to attract foreign investors. What are the key challenges while attracting investors?
Every government, once in two years, organises 'Invest Karnataka'. Getting MoUs and converting them into reality is a major concern. The government has formed three committees, known as 'Vision Group', and my question FKCCI or other trade bodies are not represented here. FKCCI is the main parent body representing industries. What is the present government's vision in forming these three committees? The labour department is another issue. The present labour charges are Rs 16,500 and the government of Karnataka is proposing Rs 31,000. Neighbouring Tamil Nadu is paying Rs 12,500. It is about basic minimum wages. The investor is not aware of this. It is better to call investors with all the departments in one place.

Is the government failing to understand this?
The government is running at the whims and fancies of corporates, and policies are tailormade. The government is not worried about local industries that have significantly contributed in the last five decades. It is only bothered about investments. It is aware that labour policies are not correlated with investment. Labour policies play a major part.

What about the infrastructure provided by the government?
Even basic facilities are not provided once an industry is set up. The government is not bothered about the facilities that were promised. Only taking back allotted industrial plots interests them if an industry is not set up within a stipulated time.

If the government is considering investment in the corporate sector, won't that have a positive impact on other industries?
Why are trade bodies that have major members from MSME and SME sectors not being incorporated in the Vision Groups that the government has formed to attract investments? There was an issue with the Karnataka Electricity Regulatory Commission hiking electricity tariffs and Energy Minister KJ George spoke to us. We held several meetings throughout the state and convinced local industries. But when it comes to making policies and investments, there is no FKCCI representation. Such double-standards of the government cannot run for long.

How do you plan to support MSMEs?
At present, we do not have a voice in the government. The government cannot ignore FKCCI or any other trade industry bodies for long. Every six months, new policies, tariff and GST issues crop up and the government has to approach FKCCI. We are a dominant force. We contribute significantly to any corporates coming and setting up units in Karnataka. But SMEs cannot be ignored. This is the message I want to give to the government. We were the ones who initiated the $1 trillion dollar concept and we have to see how best we can make the state a $5 trillion economy. We do not want to be troubled by the government

How bad is the power situation in Karnataka?
At present, the state government can give power to industries throughout this year. We do not ask for any free power. The government purchases power for a lesser rate and charges us Rs 8 . If the government cannot provide us with power, we can have our own power generation units. Monsoon affects only agriculture and the government can supply power to industries.

What are the broader issues faced by industries in Karnataka?
Industries are facing major issues with the Pollution Control Board, as it is very difficult to adhere to their norms. The Pollution Control Board has become a nightmare for industries. As a president, I am going to raise the issue. Lower levels of corruption should go. I have discussed this with Union Minister Piyush Goyal and he suggested an idea that the interface between the officers and existing licence holder must go. There is no ease of doing business in Karnataka as of now. All licensing procedures should be rolled into one.

How many new industries and MSMEs have come up post-Covid?
Post-Covid, some 30 per cent of MSMEs have wound up because of payment and other issues. In Machohalli, Peenya, Dobbaspet and Kumbalgodu industrial areas, small SMEs have closed. In the last year, new industries have been coming up but not the way the government is projecting. It will take two years to make up this loss.

How do you see the situation of new industries? Is it the same across the country?
I have been to Rajasthan, Maharashtra and Gujarat and the issues are the same.

Industries in Bengaluru lack basic amenities, like poor streetlights and bad roads. How is this as compared to corporate firms?
Basic facilities are not provided in any of the industrial clusters like Peenya and Magadi Road. Forget other parts of the state, industries do not get facilities in Bengaluru. The government is not bothered after an industry is set up.

Industries are blamed for polluting water bodies by discharging effluents ...
It was the government that permitted us to open an industry. If an industry comes, it is natural that effluents are discharged. As an industry body, we have our local arrangement, but the government too has about 50 per cent responsibility. Take the case of Harohalli, where 15 industries have been set up and there are effluent treatment plants. A lake is situated about half-a-kilometre away. Still, the pollution control board has served them notices. We are in no way connected to pollution. If activists have a problem and complain about lake pollution, the government should relocate us. Give us time and option, we can relocate in a phased manner. If water bodies are getting impacted, let residents and activists raise issues with us. FKCCI will take it up with the government and ask for relocation.

What is the status of industries in Tier-2 cities?
Setting up industries in tier-2 cities depends on the interest and might of the minister concerned. Some units were set up in such cities, but because of the negligence of the government, they shifted to other states. I am going to suggest bringing at least one innovative idea to each district. I told Minister Priyank Kharge to get one big unit to Kalaburagi so that thousands of youth who come to Bengaluru for salaries of Rs 3-7 lakh per annum can stay back. If we put a few industries with employee capacity of 1,000-1,500 in Kalaburagi, we will see the difference.

Why do you think industries prefer Bengaluru?
The city has made a name globally because of its IT services. We cannot stop industries from coming to Bengaluru. But my appeal to the government is to bring at least two to three companies to district headquarters. In Kalaburagi, Belagavi, Shivamogga and Hubballi, we have basic livable conditions. I appeal to Minister MB Patil to focus on these places and attract investors to get youth in these districts to work.

What issues do district headquarters face? What reports are you getting from them about industries?
The basic feedback we get from places like Ballari, Kolar, Dharwad and Bidar is that the government should come up with incentives or subsidies to attract investments. There may be schemes, but they are not relevant to the current situation and cost. The food processing unit at Nanjangud has not been taken up because of lack of awareness. Let the government choose about eight districts for investment and Bengaluru should not be included in this. We are in tandem with the industry ministry and appeal to them to invest in tier-2 cities too.

Do different political parties have different commitment to industries?
I have seen all parties and there is no difference. Before coming to power, they say they will hear us. But once they come to power, they forget us. I was closely associated with FDI and retail policy. The present central government had promised not to control FDI, but they opened floodgates for FDI when they came to power. We cannot believe any government, but have to choose from the best.

PM Narendra Modi raised a slogan for 'Local For Vocal' and others. What is the reality?
Slogans are very fancy. When BJP declared him the PM face in 2014, the party called 140 industry heads and I was one among them. He had promised that 16 tax licences would be reduced to four and FDI would not be allowed. But that has still remained a dream. We have to blame ourselves for getting convinced by such slogans.

What are the major issues with small and medium enterprises (SMEs)?
Power tariff, high labour charges and our credit facility not matching the payments that we have to remit to the bank. These are three major concerns for SMEs. Loans are not easy. Do you know how difficult it is to get a MUDRA loan? It is okay for street vendors, but not for industries. It is difficult as there are lengthy processes.

FKCCI has a sub-committee. Have you given any recommendations to the government?
Yes. As there is a large-scale of migration from UP, Bihar and Assam, we have suggested that a super fast train be introduced from Bengaluru to Patna and another route. We had given the proposal to the railway minister.

Does Bengaluru need a second airport?
No. After Terminal-2 became operational, there is no rush in Terminal-1 and it is empty most of the time. Instead of going beyond Tumakuru for a second airport, the government can opt for HAL airport, if needed. For the current population, I don't see any requirement for another airport for at least next five years.

What is your take on APMC laws?
Unfortunately, despite Modi taking back the proposed farm laws after massive protests by farmers, the BJP government did not withdraw it in Karnataka. This was a larger concern that we (FKCCI) represented a lot. But Basavaraj Bommai was not ready. Once the product reaches the APMC, his/her payment is secure, hence APMC should be brought back. There are 108 products listed in APMC, and the auction goes on. The prices fixed too are correct and the money goes to farmers directly. The bill was passed thanks to the Congress government. (JDS state president) HD Kumaraswamy had come to FKCCI and included issues around APMC laws in his party manifesto. But his party opposed it in the Legislative Council. Keeping politics apart, at times of droughts, APMC is needed as traders do not cheat farmers. The trading community is always with farmers. APMCs are not self-sufficient in pulses at present. We are self-sufficient in paddy, sugar, milk and wheat. About 45 per cent of the Indian population depends on pulses for nutrition and protein. We have to draw up a 5-year plan for pulse production to match 17.7 lakh million metric tonnes annually. This year, we have a shortage of 3.5 million metric tonnes

Is there a problem of middlemen even in APMC?
In the entire country, Karnataka's APMC model is good, while Punjab and other states are following the model of auction. The payments are settled on the spot.

What advice do you give youngsters to become entrepreneurs?
More youngsters should choose entrepreneurship. A lot of banks are coming forward and they are being handheld. They can become successful entrepreneurs because of the friendly nature of people in Karnataka.

CASTE SURVEY REPORT CAN PUT CONGRESS IN A BIND

THE much-talked-about "socio-economic, educational survey", often referred to as a caste survey, commissioned by Siddaramaiah during his first tenure as Chief Minister from 2013 to 2018, seems to be jinxed.

Just when it seemed Chief Minister Siddaramaiah would make the most of the report to further consolidate his position in Congress as a champion of the backward classes, the opposition to it is growing by the day. Given the current political atmosphere in the state, the report is unlikely to see the light of day anytime soon, unless the ruling Congress is willing to take a huge political risk just ahead of the 2024 Lok Sabha polls. That looks highly unlikely.

In the next few days, the report is expected to be submitted to the state government by Karnataka State Permanent Backward Classes Commission (KSPBCC) Chairman Jayaprakash Hegde. His tenure is ending this month. Siddaramaiah has often stated that his government is committed to accepting the report and implementing its recommendations. He even blamed the governments that came to power after 2018 for failing to accept the report. H Kantharaju was the chairman of KSPBCC when the Rs 160 crore exercise was done and the report was prepared.

It is easier said than done for Siddaramaiah and Congress to implement the recommendations of the report. Two dominant communities, Lingayats and Vokkaligas, are up in arms against it. Their concerns are based on allegedly leaked contents of the report that put their numbers at much less than what they believe them to be. In the last few days, prominent leaders from the two communities discussed the yet-to-be-submitted report and expressed their opposition to it.

A section of the Veerashaiva-Lingayat community feels it is a manipulated report. Their apprehension is that the community's population is shown less than half of the actual numbers. But, the numbers are not the only concern. They are more worried about the report misrepresenting the socio-economic and educational status of the community. That could have far-reaching implications on the development of the predominantly farming community that also includes a large section that is economically and educationally backward.

Veerashaiva Mahasabha Secretary Renuka Prasanna says the government should conduct a fresh survey linking Aadhaar and using the latest technologies to ensure its accuracy. Influential seer of Vokkaliga community's Adichunchangiri Mutt Nirmalanandanatha Swamiji reflected the community's views that the report does not capture the real situation. He too asked the government to reconsider it and, if possible, conduct a fresh census.

Deputy Chief Minister and state Congress president DK Shivakumar was present at the Vokkaliga community leaders' meeting that opposed the report. That was significant considering the influence he wields in the current dispensation and the party. Shivakumar cannot afford to antagonise the community.

If Siddaramaiah or his camp followers push for it, it can potentially create internal divisions in the government and Congress. It can even pit the CM and the party against the two dominant communities.

While Vokkaligas are a dominant force in the Old Mysuru region, Lingayat community leaders claim they are the deciding factor in around 154 out of 224 assembly segments. Now, with the BJP trying to reconsolidate its support base among the Lingayats by appointing former CM BS Yediyurappa's son BY Vijayendra as its state unit president, the Congress will not do anything that would even send a wrong message to the community.

In 2018, Siddaramaiah and Congress' stand on separate religious status for Lingayats backfired as it was perceived as a divisive strategy. This time around, the party is banking on its guarantee schemes to do well in the Lok Sabha polls and will tread cautiously. Karnataka being the home state of AICC president Mallikarjuna Kharge, the party is unlikely to give a free hand to state leaders to decide on sensitive issues that can jeopardise its plans for revival at the national level.

Also, the Janata Dal (Secular) and BJP have decided to go together in the Lok Sabha polls. Unlike in the assembly polls, they would be working on a strategy to avoid splitting of anti-Congress votes in the Vokkaliga heartland of Old Mysuru region.

Given the tricky situation, the Siddaramaiah government may just receive the report and refrain from any further action. That is also not a comfortable position for the CM, who will come under pressure from communities to make the report public and act on it.

Former AICC president Rahul Gandhi may be batting for the caste census at the national level. But, in Karnataka, the report is likely to put his party in a bind ahead of the Lok Sabha polls.

Will raise Cong's graft in session: Ashoka

ENS @ Bengaluru

A day after he was appointed Leader of Opposition in the Assembly, senior BJP leader R Ashoka on Saturday said that during the legislature session in Belagavi, he will raise issues concerning CM Siddaramaiah's son Dr Yathindra's alleged involvement in official transfers and Housing Minister Zameer Ahmed Khan's statement that BJP members have to salute a Muslim Speaker (UT Khader).

"Yathindra's involvement is proof that the Congress government has made the state the ATM of Sonia Gandhi," he alleged.

After calling on BJP's alliance partner and JDS patriarch HD Deve Gowda, he said that during the 15-20-minute meeting, Gowda suggested that he raise Zameer's statement.

Ashoka said Gowda advised him to collaborate with JDS state president HD Kumaraswamy and win more LS seats befitting the respect PM Narendra Modi holds.

He hinted that BJP will fight it out against Congress' minority appeasement through Tipu Sultan and denigrating Veer Savarkar by replacing his portrait with Jawaharlal Nehru's at Suvarna Vidhana Soudha. "Siddaramaiah, once removed from his CM post, may launch a party in the name of Tipu Sultan," he said, replying to the CM's statement that Ashoka will fall like a dry leaf.

Hitting out at RDPR Minister Priyank Kharge's allegation that Ashoka paid money to the high command to become LoP, he asked how much did Priyank and his father Mallikarjun Kharge, who is AICC president, pay the Congress high command to get their posts. "It Congress' culture to pay to get power and not BJP's. Priyank's father might have paid thousands of crores," he alleged.

How did officer's name come in transfer list: HDK

ENS @ Bengaluru

EVEN as a controversial video clip of Dr Yathindra Siddaramaiah has gone viral, JDS leader HD Kumaraswamy on Saturday alleged that the name of the "official" mentioned in Yathindra's phone conversation with his father, CM Siddaramaiah, was one of the police officers transferred.

Kumaraswamy, who has alleged a cash-for-posts scam in the Siddaramaiah government, claimed that the one "Vivekananda" mentioned in Yathindra's conversation is a senior police officer, who was transferred to a station in Mysuru. Siddaramaiah denied the allegations.

In a series of posts on X, Kumaraswamy mentioned about the transfer order of police inspectors, where he pointed out that Vivekananda has reportedly been transferred from State Intelligence to VV Pura. Kumaraswamy referred to Yathindra's video, where he had mentioned Vivekananda. The former CM connected Yathindra's conversation with the transfer order, where there is a mention of Vivekanand, and accordingly questioned Siddaramiah. "... you (CM) alleged Kumaraswamy makes allegations like a hit-and-run... What do you have to say now?" he questioned.

YATHINDRA BREAKS SILENCE, SEEKS EVIDENCE FROM HDK

MYSURU: Breaking his silence on Saturday, former Congress MLA Dr Yathindra Siddaramaiah refuted allegations levelled against him by former CM HD Kumaraswamy. He challenged the JDS leader to show evidence before making allegations. "I need not clarify anything, as I haven't spoken about money. I speak to the CM on many issues. This time, it was about CSR funds. How can anyone jump to a conclusion, presuming that it is a transfer list?" Yathindra asked. He in turn alleged that Kumaraswamy's entire family is into politics and all transfers were made after receiving kickbacks when they were in power.

WILL REPLY IN WINTER SESSION, SAYS CHIEF MINISTER

MYSURU: Referring to JDS leader HD Kumaraswamy firing another salvo accusing the government of a cash for transfer scam, CM Siddaramaiah said he cannot reply to baseless charges and will answer in the winter session. He maintained that the Vivekananda named in the video involving Yathindra is a Block Education Officer and not a Police Inspector in Mysuru. Siddaramaiah said the BJP is living in an illusion. He observed that rifts would further deepen within the party, after BY Vijayendra and R Ashoka were made the BJP state president and Leader of the Opposition, respectively.

The Elevate scheme initiated by Karnataka in 2016 to encourage innovators and fund startups was relaunched in Bengaluru on Saturday. Elevate 2023 will invite online applications from November till December, pitch the stage till January and will conclude by February next

TN Assembly adopts 10 Bills

State government says House has the power to reconsider legislation

T MURUGANANDHAM @ Chennai

THE Tamil Nadu Assembly on Saturday re-adopted the 10 bills for which Governor RN Ravi has withheld his assent. The bills were re-adopted without any change. Principal opposition party AIADMK and its erstwhile ally BJP staged a walkout for different reasons before the House re-adopted the bills.

"The governor has kept the bills pending for long, and on November 13, without giving any reason, returned the bills mentioning that he has withhold assent. This Assembly feels that this is not acceptable," the CM said before moving the resolution for reconsideration of the bills by the House.

"This House takes note that under proviso to Article 200 of the Constitution, if these bills are passed again and presented to the governor, he shall not withhold assent therefrom," he said. Leader of the Opposition, Edappadi K Palaniswami, said since the governor has said he has withheld his assent, it would mean that the bills are still under his consideration. The government, therefore, should examine if there are any legal issues in re-adopting the bills. He also said the state government could have waited for the verdict of the Supreme Court in the petition filed regarding delay by the governor in clearing bills. Palaniswami said if the SC gives a positive judgment, there would not be any need for a special session of the Assembly.

Replying to EPS, Leader of the House, Duraimurugan, said only after the state moved the SC, did the governor convey that he had withheld assent to the bills. He would be informing this to the SC when the case is taken up for hearing in a few days. If the 10 bills are readopted now before the next hearing in the SC, the governor should face the court only after giving assent to the readopted bills. Finance Minister Thangam Thennarasu said, "Withholding assent amounts to rejection. During the previous AIADMK regime, the President returned the NEET Bill saying "withheld and returned". The Union government counsels also later clarified that withheld would mean that the bill had been rejected."

Reacting to the developments, senior advocate K Vijayan said, "As per the Constitution, the governor doesn't have any independent powers. He can only act on the advice of the council of ministers."

SYNERGIA CONCLAVE

Forces must usher in revolution in military affairs: CDS

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

IN a world rife with conflicts, future security challenges will be driven by the trajectory of the ongoing and unprecedented changes in global geopolitics, said the Chief of Defence Staff (CDS), Gen Anil Chauhan. In his virtual address during the ninth Synergia conclave in the city, he said the rules and maxims of diplomacy are fading away giving way to new ones.

"Events are unfolding at a speed and pace that exceeds our ability to respond and react effectively. The current challenges to national security are not only a result of interstate competition or uncertainty, but pandemics, biological, cyber and nuclear threats and transnational terrorism. There is a movement toward convergent warfare, which integrates traditional domains of warfare with emerging domains such as cyber and space. New technology will result in the battle space becoming more automated and autonomous. The Indian armed forces should be able to usher in a thorough revolution in military affairs (RMA) along with other nations to remain ahead or at par with this transformational curve," he said.

"Technological endeavours are ushering in a new age of combat with higher rates of lethality as well as complexity of detection and engagement. Technology is emerging as the new currency of power. What we are now witnessing is a race to retain technological edge and a new, emerging military revolution that foresees a change in tactics and a change in organisation to support the same," said the Defence chief.

He said the Indian armed forces will have to "operate in an environment that is being shaped by the rapidly shifting geopolitics. They will require flexibility not only in their organisational structure but also doctrinal, conceptual, behavioural and cultural structures as well as in their mindsets. They must be flexible and adaptable enough to absorb and harness niche, emerging and disruptive technologies".

On the paradigm shift in geopolitics and geo strategy, he said the new redistribution of power has made the world a plateau. "There is an increasing proclivity to enter conflict to protect perceived national interests but in most cases, it has been done without a clear exit strategy. For instance, Afghanistan, Iran and Ukraine. Many interstate conflicts have also occurred due to existing but latent disputes for example, Azerbaijan, Hamas, Russia and Ukraine."

He added that under this new emerging reality "nation states will find security and comfort in newer alliances and partnerships and will be subjected to frequent realignments to meet the real or perceived challenges. Unipolarity will become an artefact of the past and a multipolar global order with polycentric competition and cooperation will emerge. It will induce stability and the new poles will balance out each other. This will however encourage low intensity conflict proxy wars at the bottom of the pyramid," said Gen Chauhan. He cautioned that the world will witness more geopolitical conflicts in the coming 12 years than in the last two decades.

'India must maintain its multi-polar character'

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

WHILE India's economic growth projected at $10 trillion by 2035 is acceptable by global standards, the gap will remain wide with China as their growth is projected at $ 50 trillion, said Pankaj Saran, former deputy national security advisor.

He observed that the gap is because China's reforms started in 1978, whereas India's started from 1991.

Speaking to TNIE at the sidelines of the session- Mapping Trajectory of Asia 2035: Future of the Asian Century, at the ninth Synergia conclave, he said India has to devise a strategy to maintain its multi-polar character.

Though India may not be the largest country in Asia, it will surely play a significant role in the next decade. Along with artificial intelligence, it will need to work on its fiscal policy and political stability.

Adding to this, Ambassador Ranjan Mathai, former foreign secretary of India, said India should stop changing its stand on its import and export policies. Stressing on the oil situation, Mathai said as 88% of India's oil is imported, one war in the gulf or any Asian country will have serious implications on the nation. To grow faster, India must stop depending on items made in China and foster competition within the country.

Mathai added that India's GDP recovery post pandemic has been impressive.

Tech can be used to enslave humans: Harari

ENS @ Bengaluru

HUMANS are passive consumers and technology can be used to control and enslave them, limiting their potential, Prof Yuval Noah Harari, internationally acclaimed Israeli author, said on Saturday.

In his virtual address on 'Tech Evolution' during the Ninth Synergia Conclave in the city, he said, "Tech inventions can be both helpful and unhelpful. So, how can authorities ensure that inventions are helpful?" "For humans to establish cities, kingdoms and empires, they have to remember numbers to file taxes. With the invention of writing, which started with a little stick and some mud to imprint signs on a clay tablet, people found a way to record and file taxes that would be used to pay the salaries of a king's staff. So, while writing empowered kings and royalty, it enslaved the ordinary mind and led to the rise of big kingdoms," said the author of bestseller 'Sapiens.'

Harari explored the dichotomy of tech inventions in the modern day by citing the invention of Apps like YouTube and TikTok. "YouTube was initially perceived with excitement because of its technical ability to share millions of videos, but it would be useful only if there were millions of people uploading those millions of videos. This led to the 'couch potato paradigm," he said.

Holistic maritime security can't be achieved by Indian Navy alone: Adm

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

THE Indian Navy has kept a close watch on the just-concluded bilateral naval exercise - Sea Guardians-3 - by China's People's Liberation Army Navy (PLAN) and Pakistan navy in the northern Arabian Sea, Chief of the Naval Staff Admiral R Hari Kumar told TNIE on the sidelines of the ninth Synergia conclave in the city on Saturday.

Sea Guardians-3, which started at the Karachi Naval Dockyard on November 12, ended this week. The joint drill was also to safeguard the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC), which is an important part of China's proposed Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) and has been strongly opposed by India as it passes through Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK) and is in violation of the country's sovereignty.

On the role of the Indian Navy in the ongoing Israel-Gaza conflict, he said they are on standby in the Gulfs of Oman and Aden and the Red Sea for any humanitarian assistance, including evacuation.

On the use of technology and modernisation of the Navy, he said the Navy has set up an unmanned squadron in Karwar and a lot is happening on the unmanned aerial and maritime assets. Earlier addressing a session on 'Indo-Pacific Challenges and Way Ahead', he said the Indo-Pacific region centres around four parameters -- GIST (Geography, International Relations, Security, and Trade Relations). "The Indian Ocean is geographically the smallest, geologically the youngest, and geo-strategically, the most complex. The Pacific Ocean, on the other hand, is the largest, empty at its core, but with prominent fault lines," he said.

"Due to the legal ownership of the unregulated territories, the oceans are treated as 'global commons', giving nations unfettered access to their resources," said the naval chief.

He added that the Indo-Pacific region faces multiple challenges such as maritime terrorism, humanitarian crises, etc, that naval bodies like the Bhartiya Nau Sena (BNS/Indian navy) are addressing. But holistic maritime security cannot be achieved by the Indian Navy alone. "We are traversing through a contested present to an uncertain future. There is a need for cooperation and collaboration to find regional solutions for regional problems," said Adm Kumar.

CBI sleuths raid Belagavi Cantonment Board office

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Belagavi

THE Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) sleuths raided the office of the Cantonment Board on Saturday over the repeated allegations made by a resident regarding illegal constructions, land encroachments, illegal appointments to various posts in the Belagavi Cantonment Board. The CBI inquired the Cantonment Board Chief Executive Officer, K Anand, and other staff on the board.

Belagavi Cantonment Board office.

It was a joint operation by the CBI officials of Delhi and Bengaluru. A government nominated member of the board, Sudhir Tupekar, had also raised complaints of irregularities in various post appointments.

A resident of the Belagavi camp area, Cleton Coylo, who claims to have made over 10,000 complaints on the e-Chhawani portal of cantonment boards regarding the irregularities said, "I have made several complaints about illegal constructions, land encroachments, appointments of various posts in the Belagavi Cantonment Board. A complaint was also registered at Camp police station, but in vain."

"The officers and staff here spend most of their time without work. I have posted about the same on X. The CBI should do a thorough investigation into all the irregularities," he urged.

ISRAEL WAR CAN UNRAVEL WORLD ORDER: NARAYANAN

BENGALURU: Highlighting two major global risks --geopolitical and digital -- former National Security Advisor MK Narayanan said, "New technologies and strategies do not matter on the battlefield. However, they raise the risks on either side, using the ultimate nuclear weapon leading to an Oppenheimer moment." Speaking at the Synergia Conclave 2023 on Saturday, he said, "Treating China's threat the way the West dealt with Russia after Russia's attack on Ukraine can be extremely dangerous and risky. China is well prepared and the world should not underestimate this." On the unrest in the Middle East, he said Israel has employed a sledgehammer to swat the Palestinian fly. "If this persists, it could unravel the world order," he added. He warned, "With the emergence of generative artificial intelligence, the situation will become still more critical. There's a real risk that it could alter the very fabric of nation-states, with truth itself becoming a casualty. The deep fake syndrome and the use of AI is fraught with many risks. Its adoption should be done with the utmost care." He said AI and cyber threats will be the most critical element in any future war. – Puran Choudhary

India needs a national security policy: Raghavan

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

IT'S time for India to have its own national security policy. The National Security Advisory Board (NSAB) has done whatever it could do for such a policy. Its suggestions have been accepted by the Union Government and its security council, said Ambassador PS Raghavan, chairman of NSAB, India.

Speaking on the sidelines of a discussion on 'Global Futures 2035 - Plausible Alternate Futures' as part of the Ninth Synergia Conclave here on Saturday, Raghavan said inputs from multi-stakeholders have been taken and a strategy has been prepared. He said work on having a strategy for internal security is on along with military, drought, economic and financial policies. All of them have to be integrated and the Union Government is working in this direction. Experts have also studied the US security policy of 2022. Raghavan said there is a need to reinvent the UN as the world body has lost its relevance. People have been talking about the UN Security Council's role in ensuring international peace, but it has failed in its duties.

Ethical adoption of technology crucial: Principal scientific advisor

PURAN CHOUDHARY @ Bengaluru

PRINCIPAL Scientific Advisor (PSA) to the Government of India Anil Sood said technologies and its developments in various sectors such as health, agriculture and cybersecurity need to be analysed and their adoption should be ethical. Aspects such as sustainability and environmental impact should be considered.

He was speaking at Dialogue 2023 event in Bengaluru on Saturday organised by the Indian Institute of Science (IISC) and the Office of the PSA. Sood also spoke about the National Quantum Mission which has been allotted a budget of Rs 6,003.615 crore for over eight years. "Quantum technology mission will give an opportunity to cash on quantum computing, quantum communication and quantum sensors," he said.

He added that India has become a great contributor to artificial intelligence. He said over 11 ministries are working on the the soon-to-be-launched One Health Mission, which will have a holistic approach to pandemic preparedness, joint outbreak response, routine prevention programmes and integrated surveillance. "A health institute under the mission will be built in Nagpur, Maharashtra to coordinate efforts of all the ministries and focus on the gap areas and technology challenges," Sood informed. Israeli intelligence caught off-guard during Hamas attack: Mossad ex-director

UZI ARAD, former director of Mossad and former national security advisor to Benjamin Netanyahu, said that Israel's intelligence failure in predicting the Hamas attacks had caught the intelligence systems off guard.

"The surprise attack caught Israel off-guard on a strategic level. The nature of the attack sheds light on the state of Israeli intelligence. Israel is paying the consequence of not thinking strategically," he said at the Synergia Conclave on Friday.

He said they did not receive enough warnings of the nature of the attacks.

"We overstated the value of our technical means to provide the kind of warning needed to counter such an attack. We fell short of sufficient intelligence," he accepted.

He said, "We also failed in knowing the enemy. We refused to accept the very character of those jihadi groups. Politicisation of intelligence was responsible for the conflict. Our intelligence was politicised. It happened to us at a great cost."

He remarked, "We should have information from reliable sources, which has been done in the past. It is the duty of intelligence organizations that are mandated to provide a warning. Victories are not promised and warnings are not guaranteed in the field of intelligence. So we should do it professionally and responsibly, and combat radicalism cooperatively."

He also went on to add that the attack on Israel has a far-reaching impact and has "the potential to escalate into a national crisis with international potential." Arad emphasised that the Hamas attack poses a security breach to the very idea of "world peace". And the crisis unfolding in the Middle Eastern region should be referred to as a "global crisis."

TAYLOR Swift is the go-to muse for Wall Street to define consumer spend or market volatility. Last week, a Goldman Sachs note trilled her hit track 'All you had to do was stay' as it asked investors to channel their inner Swift while equity and bond markets yo-yoed. Swifties are useful in illuminating geopolitics too. Swift's hit single 'Bad blood' could well be the anthem of fifty-plus years of US-China relations—mad love followed by bad blood.

Context, they say, defines and redefines events. The world is witnessing two wars—one in Ukraine and another in the Middle East. The global economy is wracked by rising cost of capital and falling growth. Constantly evolving definitions of national security are determining the flow of capital and trade. A glossary of phrases—decoupling, de-risking, offshoring, near-shoring and friend shoring—outline the contours of critical supply chains.

This week, US President Joe Biden met with Chinese President Xi Jinping in San Francisco. Between them the two nations account for $43 trillion or effectively over 40 percent of the $105-trillion global economy. The two questions the world seeks answers to are: will wolf warrior China wage a war to annex Taiwan and whether Xi has any credible plan to pull China's economy out of what is the worst decline in decades.

The questions matter as their answers will determine the course of politics and policy. Consider the stance on the issue of Taiwan. Briefing the press, Biden stated that the US "stressed the importance of peace and stability in the Taiwan Straits". When asked if Xi outlined the conditions under which China would attack Taiwan, Biden reiterated "there is a One China policy and that—and I'm not going to change that".

Xi didn't utter the six letter noun in public. However, he did present a friendly face at a dinner for "friendly organisations in the US". Xi pledged "heart-warming" measures to make it easier for foreign companies and declared that "the next China is still China". Perhaps the CEOs who attended the dinner—some of who paid $40,000 for a seat at the table of a person Biden publicly called a dictator—want to believe it.

Xi also made a wondrous claim when he asserted, "Since the founding of the People's Republic, China has not provoked a conflict or war, or occupied a single inch of foreign land." Mind you, this is the leader who declared "we make no promise to renounce force" to annex Taiwan and under whose watch the PLA intruded into India and a map appropriated territory of six countries.

What may have enabled suspension of disbelief is a new growing belief in the US—particularly among corporates—that events unfolding in Taipei may alter the course of geopolitics. Taiwan's two main opposition parties, Kuomintang and Taiwan People's Party, which have vowed to restart talks with China, have come together to take on the ruling Democratic Progressive Party. Wall Street is perhaps betting that the coming together of the two parties may remove the potential flashpoint. The newfound subscription triggers two questions: what if DPP wins and what if the Chinese economy doesn't revive?

There are though no guarantees in geopolitics. The province of geopolitics is located in the landscape of pragmatism, pretence, posturing and perfidy. It is instructive to track the timeline of events. In June 2021, US President Biden met with Russian President Vladimir Putin in Geneva. The US President "communicated the United States' unwavering commitment to the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Ukraine". Biden also said, rather presciently, "I'm not confident he'll change his behaviour."

In November 2021, US intelligence agencies briefed Western allies of Russia's plans to invade Ukraine—this week marks two years since the first revelations. In December 2021, the two leaders spoke for two hours on a video call when Biden warned Putin of sanctions if Russia invaded Ukraine. Putin demanded binding guarantees against NATO expansion. On February 4, 2022 Putin met with Chinese President Xi in Beijing where they announced a "no limits" friendship. On February 24, 2022 Russian forces entered Ukraine. The war has since roiled global energy and food supplies, displaced millions and claimed thousands of lives.

There is no disputing that the jaw-jaw is useful to contain confrontation. It did produce three takeaways. They talked about talking. The two sides agreed to re-establish high-level military-to-military communication. China promised to cooperate in combating trade in illegal fentanyl which claims over 200 lives a day in the US. The promise is subject to the robust Reaganesque rule of trust but verify. Then there is the exotic element: the two countries agreed on the need to address the risks of AI systems and safety through talks. The allure of the vague aspiration begs the question: how exactly will regimes recognise risks in a domain that is yet evolving?

There is lip-sync on peace but, equally, there is also the hum of 'Bad blood'. Biden summarised the meet in his characteristic style: "It is not all kumbaya". The rah-rah which followed was more a celebration of status quo, contentment over containment of conflict. The outcomes illuminate the shadow of competing compulsions. As this column has observed, the powerful are also dependent.

KERALA GAZA PROTEST IS APPEASEMENT POLITICS

POWER & POLITICS

PRABHU CHAWLA

COUNTLESS centuries ago, the sage Parasurama is believed to have flung his battle axe into the Arabian Sea. The Sage's Own Country emerged from the waters, symbolising the ultimate power of Hinduism. The myth of its birth has been overtaken by the new reality of local-for-global communalism, nourished by Kerala's two pre-eminent parties—the Congress and the Communists. The distance of 4,780 km between Gaza and Kozhikode isn't a deterrent for sowing hatred. Ignited by religious fanaticism and fuelled by identity politics, the people of Kozhikode roared in anger last week against Israel's lethal attacks on the Gaza Strip after the October 7 massacre.

Similar anti-semitic protests and vandalism in immigrant-dense countries are being powered by secular illiberals in the name of woke liberation. But the outrage in Kozhikode was communally toxic, endorsing Hamas terrorists. Organised by a Muslim youth outfit, it was the biggest Palestine solidarity march in India with full backing from all Islamic political and religious groups. The dirtiest stain on the Malayali keffiyeh was the live virtual address by Hamas leader Khaled Mashal to an over 100,000-strong crowd. It was a privilege no Hamas terrorist has got in any other country. Mashal's 7-minute video showed off the slogan, "Uproot bulldozer Hindutva and apartheid Zionism." Local sponsors are exploiting the Gaza war to spew venom and place radical Islamism on steroids in the state, which had been driven underground by the NSA's sweeping arrests of PFI leaders.

While in the rest of India pseudo secularists and illiberal elites confined their disapproval to purple prose in public statements and drawing room distress, Kerala's pro-Hamas demonstration raised serious questions over national security and threat to communal harmony in the state. With the BJP trying to retain its marginal political space in Kerala, the narrative is dominated by the Congress and CPM. The Communists especially depend on Kerala for their relevance after the BJP ousted it from its Tripura bastion. Of the 52 Lok Sabha seats the Congress won in 2019, 15 are from Kerala, including Rahul Gandhi's. While the Indian Union Muslim League has two MPs, the CPM has just one. The BJP nil.

T P SOORAJ

But the blame didn't lie at the doorstep of any Muslim organisation alone. Kerala is possessed by the djinn of dangerously divisive competitive exhibitionism favouring minority appeasement in the name of Palestine solidarity. The ruling CPM supported by the IUML refuses to be left behind in the raging rhetoric against Israel. The Red rampagers organised a massive rally to mark the 19th death anniversary of terrorist-turned-peace hustler Yasser Arafat, who led the Palestine Liberation Organisation and was Indira Gandhi's favourite. In Kozhikode, Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan targeted the Narendra Modi government more than Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. He thundered, "India is the biggest consumer of weapons manufactured in Israel. Indian taxpayers' money should not be given to kill innocent Palestinian children. So India should scrap all military deals with Israel and sever diplomatic ties with it," and that "Israel is one of the biggest terrorist countries. The 'Zionist' bias of the current rulers of India was not a surprise at all". As expected, BJP state president K Surendran snapped back, "Only bearded moulavis (Muslim preachers) were present on the dais at the CPM rally. This has raised doubts among people that the left-wing party has changed its name to the Communist Party of Moulavis."

If the CPM has succumbed to pressure from hardcore Muslim groups, can the Congress be far behind? It belatedly promised to beat its Communist adversaries with a bigger rally on November 23 on Kozhikode beach. The Congress-led United Democratic Front is the only alternative to the CPM-led Left Democratic Front. When local police denied permission, Congress state president K Sudhakaran retaliated, "Either the rally will take place or a war with the police will, if they create trouble." Both parties are playing politics over the corpses of dead Palestinians for electoral advantage. Neither party can get a majority without the active support of the Muslims who constitute almost 35 percent of the state population—double the national average. The Congress has distilled the pro-Palestine agitation into a local affair since the national leadership's response is ambivalent. No prominent leader such as Mallikarjun Kharge or the Gandhis is attending the rally, which will be addressed by party general secretary K C Venugopal, who hails from the state.

Gaza apologists deny that the events in Kerala have nothing to do with Hamas and are being unjustifiably painted green. Perhaps the affinity of Malabar-based Muslims with the Palestine cause lies in the genetics of history. Muslims from West Asia entered the Malabar region during the 7th century and became landlords by ejecting the Hindus. According to historians, the flourishing Arab trade through the Persian Sea earned Kozhikode the moniker, City of Spices. These merchants were given liberal permission to set up businesses and marry local girls. They settled in large numbers and became big farmers and traders, thanks to help from local authorities. They were called 'Moplahs' (sons in law). Kozhikode became their favoured habitat. For a couple of centuries until the British arrived, Moplahs ruled the roost. By the end of the 18th century, land ownership was substantially restored to the original Hindu Jammis (zamindars). The Moplahs couldn't digest the change. They revolted against Hindu landlords in 1921 alleging that higher taxes on tilling their land were unfair. Though billed as an anti-British revolt, the retaliatory riots were anti-Hindu in nature. Even liberal leaders like BR Ambedkar and Annie Besant have written that the Moplah rebellion was not an agrarian revolt but was meant to eliminate Keralas' Hindus. Besant claimed, "They established the Khilafat Raj, crowned a king, murdered and plundered abundantly, and killed or drove away all Hindus who would not apostatise." Ambedkar was more aggressive: "As a rebellion against the British government, it was quite understandable. But what baffled most was the treatment accorded by the Moplahs to the Hindus of Malabar," and added, "This was not a Hindu-Muslim riot... The number of Hindus who were killed, wounded or converted, is not known. But the number must have been enormous."

More than a hundred years later, the sparks of ancient hatred dominate public discourse. The RSS, which has been leading from the front, has lost hundreds of workers to murderous fundamentalists and responds with an 'eye for an eye' policy. But its struggle to change the colours and contours of the one-sided polarisation of Kerala's social landscape is failing. While India as a whole has taken the middle path on the Israel-Arab conflict, a large section of Kerala is on the path to communal and cultural perdition. It may be good politics for the state's parties, but represents a partial, ugly face of a New South India.

PROPAGANDA FILMS AT ELECTION TIME

OPINION

NAMRATA JOSHI
Consulting Editor
(Follow her on X @Namrata_Joshi)

ONE of my memorable film viewing experiences was MG Ramachandran's 1958 classic, Nadodi Mannan (The Vagabond King), at Coimbatore's iconic Delite cinema back in 2014. The film had the actor in the double role of King Marthandan and revolutionary Veerangan. An engrossing mix of intrigue and emotion, comedy and action, it was above all politically charged in its dismissal of monarchy and call for democracy with MGR as Veerangan getting thumping approval from Delite's predominantly underprivileged audience.

Nadodi Mannan often gets mentioned as a "propaganda blitzkrieg" and "party manifesto" for the DMK, with party flags visible through the film. At its very basic, the film's propaganda was replete with idealism—anti-injustice and pro-reforms, a film of the people and for the people.

Cut to 2023 and I find Shah Rukh Khan attempting something similar in the biggest blockbuster of the year, Jawan—fighting corruption in arms deals, helping dispossessed farmers, making a case for a sturdy medical infrastructure, and exhorting people to exercise their franchise with care. Ahead of an election, it's peak propaganda that tells its viewers to vote for the right candidate, but doesn't have any political party backing it.

As opposed to this old-fashioned pro-people pamphleteering, this year has also seen the success of Gadar 2, that rides on the animus against Pakistan, and The Kerala Story, heavily promoted by the BJP used in the Karnataka election campaign by none other than the PM. About Islamophobic stereotypes and conspiracy theories about conversions, it has been one of the biggest hits of the year so far.

Political parties and governments have tried to leverage cinema to their advantage since time immemorial. One of the earliest recorded propaganda films is supposed to be a 1939 social drama, Master Vinayak's Brandy Ki Botal, which was reportedly sponsored by the Congress and promoted Gandhi's prohibition ideology.

The cinema of the 1950s and early 1960s reflected the Nehruvian vision of harmony, pacifism and progress and socialist nation-building in films such as Jagriti, Ab Dilli Door Nahin, Naya Daur, Hum Hindustani, Dhool Ka Phool, Dharmaputra and a lament-like war film, Haqeeqat. Even critiques of Nehru's policies in films such as Pyaasa, Phir Subah Hogi, Footpath, Shree 420 and Do Beegha Zameen were marked with grace. They were nationalistic without being shrill. The remnants of that Nehruvian aesthetic could be seen later in the humanism of Lagaan, Chak De India and Bajrangi Bhaijaan.

Then there were films like Shyam Benegal's Arohan (1982), in which Om Puri played a tenant farmer whose destiny changes for the better once the first Left Front government comes to power in West Bengal and he gets his rights.

Things have come a long way with the BJP understanding the power of propaganda more cannily than the rest. In 2019, propaganda cinema was fawning and personality-focused. Uri celebrated the 2016 surgical strikes. In the biopic PM Narendra Modi, Vivek Oberoi, playing him on screen, justified not apologising for Godhra: "Maafi gunehgaar maangte hain aur kanoon saboot (A wrongdoer asks for forgiveness and the law demands evidence)." Then there was a web-series titled Modi: Journey of a Common Man.

Propaganda films have been around for a long time. Parties in North India and the South, from the political right and the left have used them. But these days a new kind of propaganda cinema is being churned out

Another kind of propaganda film questioned the Congress: The Tashkent Files raised questions around Lal Bahadur Shastri's sudden death and The Accidental Prime Minister caricatured former PM Manmohan Singh.

Since then, the BJP has bolstered a majoritarian cinema that has been emerging as a counter to the Nehruvian narratives of yore. It's about promoting BJP ideology as that of the nation rather than just giving props to Modi. There are films based on government achievements—Toilet Ek Prem Katha, Mission Mangal—and others that platform the rise of an aggressive jingoism with slogans like—"How's the josh?" There are revivalist historicals—Tanhaji, Manikarnika, Samrat Prithviraj—and others harking back to mythology, like Adipurush, Brahmastra, or the recent Ram Setu. What's galling, however, is the whipping up of communal hatred targeted against the minorities in films such as 72 Hoorain and Ajmer 92 as a mode of stoking Hindutva pride.

It's apparent that not all of it is working. Post 2019, apart from Tanhaji, The Kashmir Files and The Kerala Story, the rest have bombed at the box office. It's been the same with the fortunes of film stars seen as BJP mascots, be it Kangana Ranaut, who delivered a new dud in Tejas, or Akshay Kumar, whose new film Mission Raniganj had few takers.

It's tough to expect nuance and accuracy in propaganda. But what about aesthetics? Pamphleteering too has its art. The reason why Leni Reifenstahl's Nazi propaganda Triumph of the Will (1935) is a prescribed text in cinema studies for its motifs, camera work and editing. The technique of montage traces its roots back to Soviet propaganda cinema. Close-ups and fadeouts were pioneered by D W Griffith in The Birth of a Nation (1915), which was denounced later for its glorification of the Ku Klux Klan. Hollywood's Vietnam war films and anti-Soviet Cold War propaganda of Rocky IV entertain even while peddling American glory. Meanwhile, we are tortured as much by The Kerala Story's hate politics as by its awful filmmaking.

There are more such films waiting in the wings. Will they make money at the turnstiles? Colonising the minds of the masses is not always easy. While elections are fickle, the box office is even more so.

QUOTE CORNER

There is no safety in [the war]—not for Israel, not for the US or Europe, and especially not for the many Jewish people slandered by those who claim falsely to fight in their names. The world, the future, our hearts—everything grows smaller and harder from it.

The carnage in Gaza cannot be allowed to continue. The warring parties must agree to a humanitarian ceasefire and stop the fighting.

Electoral bonds

Ref: Electoral bonds go against political equality (Nov 17). The column should open the eyes of all democracy lovers. If the same situation continues, there would be no meaning of elections. It will be a mockery of democracy. Anonymous corporate donations to political parties must to be curbed to respect democratic values.

Hobson's choice

After a drubbing from the Supreme Court for withholding bills, the Tamil Nadu governor returned ten bills while raising certain queries. The state government, in a masterstroke. has again passed the bills verbatim and sent back to the governor for approval. The governor is now left with a Hobson's choice, as he has to face the wrath of the court if he does not give his assent soon.

Diwali greetings

New York state Governor Kathy Hochul signed a legislation making Diwali a holiday for public schools in New York city. While that gesture is commendable, it is sad that the chief minister of Tamil Nadu did not even care to greet the people on this auspicious occasion. As an old Malayalam saying goes, some people cannot appreciate the fragrance of the flowers present in their own courtyard.

Kerala consolidation

Ref: More local bodies come out against Nava Kerala Sadas (Nov 18). The move is a strategic campaign to consolidate votes for the LDF, the same party that once criticised the late Oommen Chandy for a similar initiative. The LDF is vindicating that whatever problems they had raised then are still alive. The LDF's electoral prospects remain robust, anchored by support from traditional vote banks. IUML's alignment with the LDF is driven by a keen awareness of this dynamic.

Social awareness

Ref: Officials foil 'fidelity' test in Chittoor (Nov 18). It is utterly shocking to note that a farmer in Chittoor district of Andhra Pradesh tried to make his wife dip her hand in boiling oil to test her faith in him. This only proves that there are still some places in the state where there is a conspicuous absence of social awareness. The government should use self-help groups in eradicating such dangerous beliefs.

Water management

In Tamil Nadu, we witness water shortage for the kuruvai and samba crops. Agriculture in the delta region gets impacted every year due to the stress of either excess or deficient water. Crop insurance or compensation will only be a quick fix. The sad reality is that most farmers in the region still undergo a lot of hardship every year due to poor water management. This calls for proper irrigation and infrastructure reforms for sustainable agriculture.

Save Palestine

Ref: India strongly condemns civilian deaths in Israeli offensive against Hamas: PM (Nov 18). We should be thankful to the PM for at least now recognising the deaths of Palestinians. Israel is on a rampage. Nothing could stop its invasion of Gaza hospitals under the suspicion that Hamas terrorists may be hiding there. Even if terrorists are there, should Israel carry the battle into hospitals and cut off food and medical supplies? It is time for the United Nations to act with authority before Palestine is wiped off the world map.

Two heroes

Mohammed Shami, who was not even involved in the initial strategy of Team India, is playing a key role in the Indian team's victories at this World Cup. In the semi-final, Shami won the battle with the ball on the flat pitch of Wankhede. And Virat Kohli made the record of most ODI centuries. The team needs both to perform well at the final.

THE Prime Minister's Office has sought "appropriate action" on a complaint against non-disclosure of assets by National Medical Commission (NMC) members who, despite being at the helm for three years, have not yet posted their assets on the official website, thus violating the NMC Act 2019.

The PMO has also forwarded the complaint on non-disclosure of the assets by NMC members to the Union Health Ministry, according to an RTI.

The PMO responded to an RTI filed by Kerala-based ophthalmologist Dr KV Babu.

Babu, who has been pursuing the issue for the past several months, said he has received a response from the government for the first time. "While the NMC is stone-walling the RTI applications regarding the disclosure of assets by NMC members, the Ministry of Health, which has a responsibility to intervene, has been evasive on the matter," he said.

"The response from the PMO, which has taken action by registering the complaint and forwarding it to the ministry, is a step in the right direction," Babu told this paper.

"I believe now the NMC has to disclose the assets of its members and upload the details on the website and comply with Section 6(6) of NMC Act 2019, which makes it mandatory for the members to reveal their assets," he said.

PMO response comes after RTI query

The PMO has also forwarded the complaint on non-disclosure of the assets by NMC members to the Union Health Ministry, according to an RTI. The PMO responded to an RTI filed by Kerala-based ophthalmologist Dr KV Babu.

Non-compliance with the NMC Act is professional misconduct. It means that in addition to their removal from the posts, their licence to practise can be suspended as all members are from the medical field and are bound by the land's law.

Babu had filed the complaint to the PMO on October 16, urging the PMO to intervene and issue appropriate directions to the NMC, which monitors medical education in India, for its transparent functioning.

In his complaint, he said that he hadn't received any response from the ministry and the NMC, and neither the NMC members have posted their assets on the official website, as is the norm. He received the response from the PMO on November 9.

In its response, the PMO said that his letter received on October 19 "has been forwarded online for action as appropriate through Public Grievances Redress and Monitoring System (CPGRAMS) to Department of Health and Family Welfare."

"Redressing a grievance is under the purview of appropriate authority dealing with the subject specified. Therefore, the information sought relates to the authority concerned to which the complaint was forwarded."

This newspaper was the first to highlight that the 31-member NMC members, including its chairman, have failed to disclose their assets on the website. This was despite repeated RTIs and appeals. Their term will be over by September 25, 2024.

MOHAMMED SHAMI

INDIA'S SULTAN OF SWING

FIROZ MIRZA

SOUMYADIP SINHA

THIS World Cup, every time Mohammed Shami runs in to deliver, there seems to be a wicket falling at the other end. He has rekindled the romance of seam bowling. Just like the art of Michelangelo frozen in the ceilings and altar walls of Sistine Chapel, each delivery seemed unique and laced in a beauty of its own. Shami infused life into each cherry and induced batters into a cerebral slumber, enticing them into shots that were never there, creating a maze of illusion and reality.

Before his bowling came to 'new' life in this World Cup, his career too went through a web of surreal success and sometimes dejections; a life of myriad emotions. The story started in Amroha, UP.

The art of bowling was passed on to his sons by an aspiring cricketer, who couldn't make it beyond his village. Tousif earned the moniker of 'Tez Gendbaz' when he was in his 20s but it all ended in Amroha. Even as he made peace with his destiny, he was determined not to let another talent go to waste.

Tousif got another shot at realising the dream when his elder son Haseeb started following his footsteps. But tragedy stuck there as well. Kidney stones a day ahead of trials for the UP under-19 team meant Haseeb couldn't take part. Incidentally, Haseeb had also become a pacer learning nuances of swing bowling watching greats like Wasim Akram and Michael Holding on TV. Like father, like son, Haseeb passed on the skills to his younger brother Shami, who would later go on to become the most successful Indian bowler at the 2023 ODI World Cups.

NEWSMAKER

The struggles were not over yet as Shami was rejected multiple times for the UP U-19 team that eventually prompted his coach based out of Moradabad, Badruddin, to send him to Kolkata when he was only 16. As the story goes, the coach got a call from Kolkata's Dalhousie Athletic Club seeking a replacement for one of their pacers who got injured before a local league quarterfinal. Soon enough, Shami was on a train to the 'City of Joy' in quest of greener pastures.

He might be playing on uneven grounds of Amroha and Moradabad before moving to Kolkata but back home, his father had got a cement pitch prepared for his son. But life was dreadfully difficult in the new city as he went through the grind in the Kolkata maidans. His match fee was a meagre ₹500 per match and he used to stay in shared accommodation like any other up and coming cricketer in the city.

Tapan Chaki, who was the secretary of the Dalhousie Athletic Club then, vividly recollects those early days. "For first division league matches, we used to hire cricketers from other states and Shami came here for the same purpose," he told this daily. "If I remember correctly, four players were called from UP and Bihar back then and Shami was one among them," added 68-year-old Tapan, who also served as the president of the club that completed its 140 years last year.

Shami not only impressed the club officials with his bowling but also with his behaviour. "Shami and other players were sent to Bournvita Cricket Academy, which was started by former India player Arun Lal, to test their skills. Shami was brilliant and so he was hired by the club. For the first two days, he was given a room at the club and later shifted to a flat nearby."

The upward trajectory in life continued as Shami then joined Town Club a year later. Debabrata Das, one of the senior office-bearers of the club, was behind Shami joining the new club. He was given an annual contract of ₹70,000 and paid ₹100 as daily food allowance. Das initially kept Shami at his home.

As he loves to rattle batters with his swinging deliveries, Shami equally enjoys food delicacies, especially biryani. There is a famous incident which highlighted Shami's love for biryani. As Das told a journalist, "We needed four wickets, so I asked Shami to get the job done. He was confident and said, 'Sir you don't worry but keep four plates of biryani ready once I bag those wickets'. And he did it. The lure worked as he really loves biryani."

The envious position of the seam he manages is compared with a great like Glenn McGrath. Even in his early days, he showed such promise and even now he strives to hold that seam straight. Banerjee was so impressed with this young bowler then that he drafted him into the Ranji Bengal team after that game.

Rest as they say is history.

Festival rush: Train tickets trump air fares, thanks to dynamic pricing

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

DURING the ongoing festive season, the dynamic flexi fares implemented in premier trains, such as the Suvidha Express, have paradoxically skyrocketed to a point where air tickets are more economical, especially on the Mumbai-Patna route. The fare surge, notably in anticipation of the Chhath festival, has faced widespread criticism, leading railway authorities to swiftly reconsider the fare structure. Passengers traveling from Mumbai to Patna have expressed discontent, citing instances where Suvidha Express fares exceeded those of air travel.

The Suvidha Express, originating from Chhatrapati Shivaji Terminal in Mumbai to Patna Junction, charged a staggering ₹9,395 for second AC, according to the dynamic flexi fare system, as reported on the IRCTC website. With the Chhath festival concluding on November 21, a surge in fares for trains utilising the flexi fare system has been observed.

For the November 21 Mumbai-Patna Suvidha Express, a waiting list in the sleeper class is priced at ₹2,625, including a reservation charge of ₹20 and a superfast charge of ₹30. The dynamic fare is a significant factor contributing to the steep increase, with passengers reporting fares as high as ₹1,714, doubling the basic fare and making the total fare more than three times the original fare, at times surpassing airfares.

This issue extends beyond the Mumbai-Patna route. A dynamic fare surge for the Jaipur-Yaswantpur Suvidha Express has reached a staggering high of ₹11,230 for class 2AC until February 3. In comparison to airfares from Patna to Mumbai and Jaipur to Mumbai, this month's fares range between ₹7,000 and ₹900, subject to fluctuations.

The discontinuation of dynamic fares will not be universal, as it will persist for Rajdhani, Shatabdi and Duronto trains. The surge pricing of Suvidha tickets has attracted notice, amid the heightened demand from individuals traveling home for Chhath Puja.

PM Modi to anchor last G20 leaders' summit under India's presidency

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

WITH its G20 Presidency drawing to a close, India will host a G20 Leaders' Summit on November 22. This will be a virtual event anchored by Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

Invites have been extended to all member nations. "Leaders of all G20 members, including the chair of the African Union, nine guest countries, and heads of 11 international organisations have been invited. Due to different time zones, there is no clarity yet on who all will be taking part. A formal list will be announced closer to the event," said a source.

US President Joe Biden, British Prime Minister Rishi Sunak and French President Emmanuel Macron had attended the G20 Summit in person in September, and there are chances of them taking part in the upcoming virtual summit too. PM Modi had, during the G20 Summit on September 10, announced that before India's G20 Presidency came to a close, it would host a virtual summit. There are talks that Russian President Vladimir Putin would be present at the virtual summit but there is no official confirmation on the same yet.

"It may be recalled that the New Delhi G20 Summit witnessed the unanimous adoption of the G20 New Delhi Leaders' Declaration. The virtual summit will take forward key, select outcomes and action points from the New Delhi Summit as well as review developments since then. The deliberations of the Second Voice of Global South Summit, held on November 17, 2023, will also feed into the discussions," said the Ministry of External Affairs.

The upcoming summit is expected to push for effective implementation of various G20 decisions.

India holds the G20 Presidency until November 30, 2023. The G20 Troika during the Brazilian G20 Presidency in 2024 will comprise India, Brazil and South Africa.

Govt bins report on 11L kids missing measles shots

KAVITA BAJELI-DATT @ New Delhi

THE Central government on Saturday said reports claiming that an estimated 11 lakh children in India missed their first measles vaccine dose in FY 2022-23 are "ill-informed and inaccurate".

The Ministry of Health said that only over 20,000 children have missed their first doses of Measles Containing Vaccine (MCV) in FY 2022-23.

In a statement, the ministry said that there have been some media reports alleging that an estimated 11 lakh children in India missed their first measles vaccine dose in FY 2022-23, according to a report published by the World Health Organisation (WHO) and the US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

"These reports are not based on facts and do not reflect the true picture. They are based on the estimated number reported under WHO UNICEF Estimates National Immunisation Coverage (WUENIC) 2022, which covers the time-period from January 1, 2022 to December 31, 2022," the statement said.

"However, as per the HMIS (Health Management Information System) of the Union Ministry of Health, a total of 2,63,63,270 children out of the eligible 2,63,84,580 children received their first dose of Measles Containing Vaccine in the FY 2022-23 (April 2022 to March 2023) and only 21,310 children missed their first dose of MCV in 2022-23," the ministry said in a statement.

Besides, several initiatives have been undertaken by the government in coordination with the states to ensure that all children, either unvaccinated or partially vaccinated receive all missed or due doses.

The catch-up vaccination age for the administration of MCV has been increased from two years to five in the periodic immunisation intensification activities, the ministry said.

Intensified Mission Indradhanush (IMI) 3.0 and 4.0 were carried out in 2021 and 2022 to vaccinate all unvaccinated or partially vaccinated children with missed or due doses.

Besides this, IMI 5.0 was carried out in 2023 with a special focus to increase the coverage of MR vaccine in children up to the age of five years.

The MR campaign was carried out in Delhi and West Bengal wherein all children in the age group of nine months to 15 years (nine months to five years in Delhi) were vaccinated.

'Anti-microbial resistance causing 1.27m deaths globally every year'

KAVITA BAJELI-DATT @ New Delhi

ANTIMICROBIAL Resistance (AMR) is directly responsible for approximately 1.27 million deaths annually worldwide, with current estimates placing the number of casualties in South Asia at 389,000, as stated by the World Health Organisation (WHO) on Saturday.

On the occasion of World AMR Awareness Week, the WHO emphasised that AMR continues to pose a major challenge to global public health, with devastating effects on the efficacy of essential medicines and the ability to effectively treat infectious diseases.

"Several factors, including high population density, limited access to healthcare services, and the misuse and exploitation of antimicrobials, make the South-East Asia region particularly prone to this threat," said Dr Poonam Khetrapal Singh, WHO Regional Director for South-East Asia.

"If no action is taken now, it is estimated that by 2050, 10 million fatalities will occur annually on a global scale, costing the global economy a total of 100 trillion dollars," she said.

Dr Singh, quoting a report y the World Bank, mentioned that antimicrobial resistance will be responsible for a decrease of up to 3.8 per cent in global exports, a decrease of 7.5 per cent per year in livestock production, and an increase of $1 trillion in healthcare-related costs by 2050.

"Addressing AMR entails interdisciplinary collaboration that transcends geographical, professional and disciplinary barriers. Therefore, our region has been taking proactive measures to combat AMR," Dr Singh said, emphasized that preventing anti-microbial resistance is not a responsibility that can be borne by any one individual, organisation or country; it is a collective effort that requires our unwavering commitment.

WHO assistance

In 2011, via the Jaipur Declaration on Antimicrobial Resistance, the health ministers of the South-East Asia region urged coordinated action against AMR. In 2014, the fight against AMR was elevated to flagship priority status. Since then, WHO has been supporting member states on implementation of AMR national action plans more effectively.

■ In SC-dominated areas of Rajasthan, BJP rails against Gehlot govt ■ Cong chief hits out at BJP for making false promises

Dalit atrocities rampant under Cong govt, says PM

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi launched a scathing attack on the Congress, branding it an anti-Dalit party, during an election rally in east Rajasthan on Saturday. In a strategic move to appeal to Dalit voters in a region with a significant number of Scheduled Caste reserved seats, Modi highlighted the BJP's support for the backward community, citing the appointments of the first Dalit Election Commissioner and the first Dalit President.

Accusing the Gehlot government, Modi claimed, "New records of atrocities are being made against Dalits under the Congress rule. Congress is anti-Dalit by nature." He pointed to specific instances, such as the opposition to the appointment of the country's first Dalit Chief Information Commissioner, Hiralal Samaria, and the resistance against Ramnath Kovind's presidency.

Underscoring the Congress's consistent opposition to Dalit appointments, Modi emphasised the party's alleged anti-Dalit stance. Recognising the challenges faced by the BJP in the previous election, he expressed a strong desire to win over voters.

In addition to political rhetoric, Modi pledged to expedite the completion of the ERCP project, crucial for providing drinking water to 13 cities in eastern Rajasthan. Despite the ongoing conflict between the central and state governments, Modi assured the audience that the BJP would address the delays in this vital canal project.

To garner support, the Prime Minister criticized the high VAT imposed by the Gehlot government on petrol and diesel, resulting in a 12-rupee increase per liter compared to other BJP-ruled states. Promising a review of fuel prices if the BJP returns to power, Modi declared, "Petrol is more expensive here than in other states because the Congress government is a robber."

Mocking CM Ashok Gehlot's magical political reputation, Modi stated that the people had decided to perform a magic trick, ensuring the disappearance of the Congress from the state after the December 3rd results.

In a rally in Nagaur, Modi targeted Congress President Mallikarjuna Kharge, accusing him of disrespecting his deceased father. He said that the Ghehlot-Pilot rivalry has harmed Rajasthan.

BJP candidate anti-Dalit, Kharge slams saffron camp

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

ACCUSING the BJP-led government at the centre of being "anti-Dalit", Congress President Mallikarjun Kharge on Saturday questioned the saffron party over its decision to give the party ticket for the upcoming Rajasthan assembly elections to Girraj Singh Malinga, who is a former Congress MLA and accused of thrashing a Dalit.

While addressing a public meeting at Vair in Bharatpur district, Kharge said, "Congress declined the ticket to such a person, but BJP has given him the ticket... today he [Malinga] is contesting the elections on the lotus symbol. Modi and Shah are encouraging the assailant." such actions would not be tolerated in Congress.

He alleged that Prime Minister Narendra Modi was making "false promises" to the poor and Dalits by giving the ticket to Malinga. He criticized the alleged contradiction between talking about the welfare of the poor and Dalits and inviting those who harm them to join the party.

Asserting that individuals with "anti-Dalit" ideology should not find a place in the party, Kharge wondered how positive changes can take place in a society when such people are being fielded and remain in power. The Congress president also attacked the Modi government on issues of black money and unemployment. Questioning the promises made by Modi, Kharge said, "The PM had promised to provide two crore jobs. What happened to that promise? BJP is selling the big factories built since Independence."

Criticising the Agniveer scheme, Kharge said, "Modi government brought Agniveer scheme. We said in Parliament that if recruitment is to be done, make it permanent, but these people [BJP legislatures] did not agree."

Kharge accused the BJP of "encouraging violence" and cited incidents of crime against tribal in Madhya Pradesh. "Shivraj Chauhan washes his feet and says forgive me. Does this wash away the sins? This stigma will not go away from BJP."

Kharge was referring to an incident reported earlier this year when a person in MP was found urinating on a tribal man. The video of the incident went viral and CM Shivraj Singh Chouhan invited the victim and washed his feet.

Allegations against BJP candidate

Girraj Singh Malinga, a former Congress MLA, is accused of thrashing two engineers, including a Dalit for enquiring about non-payment of power bills in his Bari constituency. The victim sustained multiple fractures. He joined the BJP after being denied ticket by the Congress.

DECIDE

Battle of former babus in this Raj seat

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ Bhopal

AN interesting electoral battle is on between two former 'babus' (bureaucrats) in Rajasthan's Bassi assembly constituency for the November 25 assembly elections. An ex-officer of Indian Administrative Services (1980-batch IAS) is pitted against an ex- officer of Indian Police Services (IPS Rajashthan cadre).

Bassi is a reserved assembly constituency in Jaipur district falling under the Dausa Lok Sabha segment with more than 2,16,905 voters. The Congress has fielded a former IPS officer Laxman Singh Meena against BJP's Chandrabhan Meena, a former IAS officer.

"It is a direct fight between the former civil servants. Both belong to the Meena community and are distantly related," said Sohan Meena, a Bassi resident.

"Congress' Laxman Meena plunged into politics in 2009 after taking VRS from IPS while BJP's Chandra Mohan Meena joined politics after his retirement in 2014. BJP's Meena served as information commissioner in the then Raje government from 2015-16 and joined BJP before the election," he said. Chandra Mohan was the district magistrate in Jalore from 1988-90. Residents say this is the first time when Bassi is watching a direct fight between the two former babus who studied together in school and colleges.

Laxman Meena had earlier fought the election as an Independent and won the seat. The Congress after much thought got him to contest against Chandra Mohan Meena.

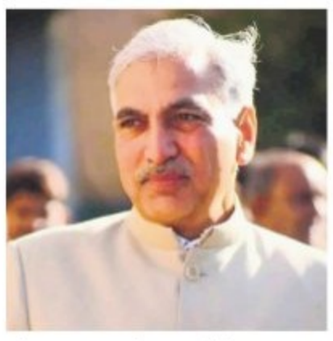
"The BJP claims to have an edge in the ST community while the Congress has fielded a candidate who contested as an independent," said Mohan Meena, who runs a ready-made garments outlet in Bassi.

In 2018, Laxman Meena had won the seat by 42,764 votes and supported the Ashok Gehlot government. Prior to his entry into politics, Laxman had served many districts as SP. He is a resident of the same panchayat called Tunga from the BJP candidate also comes.

Interestingly when BJP candidate Chandra Mohan Meena was the collector of Jalore in 1988-90, Laxman Meena was the SP in the same district. Not only this, sources said that when Chandra Mohan Meena was promoted and posted as commissioner in Bikaner, Laxman Meena accompanied him there also as the IG.

Apart from them, Congress has also fielded a former IAS officer Niranjan Arya from Sojat assembly in Bassi assembly constituency which has 23,374 voters incldiung 1,21,481 males and 10,11,293 women voters. Sources said more than 15,648 new voters have also been added this time.

Locals said the results would be decided by the youth and women voters. The BJP is attempting to popularise women voters citing the Women Reservation Bill and other women-centric schemes. The Congress is promising better education for women. The BJP is raising crimes against women as major poll issue against Congress.



It's ex-IAS vs ex-IPS in Bassi reserved constituency

Bassi is a reserved assembly constituency in Jaipur district falling under the Dausa Lok Sabha segment with more than 2,16,905 voters. Sources said more than 15,648 new voters have also been added this time. Locals said results would be decided by the youth and women voters.

Constituency WATCH BASSI

Prahlad, Rajendra Shukla 'frontrunners' for top job in MP, conditions apply

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

IT'd look like a bit of political kite-flying right now, but the saffron grapevine has it that the BJP may consider Prahlad Singh Patel or Rajendra Shukla if the BJP gets more than 130-35 seats in the Madhya Pradesh elections. And if the tally remains below 120-15, incumbent chief minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan may get yet another extension for this post.

Though party sources hinted at Patel and Shukla being the frontrunners for the top job, there is a rider. "The party would have to avoid factionalism if the results are not as per the expectation or the numbers don't stack up," remarked a source.

Rajendra Shukla, a minister in the Chouhan government and a contestant from Rewa, is considered a neutral candidate having a considerable degree of support from the party's central leadership.

Party sources did not rule out the possibility of the last-minute approval for Union minister Jyotiraditya Scindia. However, Scindia too has denied it. "In politics, possibility is not overlooked," sources said.

In Rajashthan too, the names for the CM's post would be considered depending on the poll results. "The party is confident of winning more than half of the seats (out of 200). Former CM Vasundhara Raje and a Union minister (who is not contesting the assembly elections) are believed to be frontrunners," said a source.

'Avoid factionalism'

Though party sources hinted at Patel and Shukla being the frontrunners, there was a condition: the party would have to avoid factionalism if the results are not as per the expectation or the numbers don't add up.

UP bans halal-certified food products, keeps exports out of purview

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

THE Uttar Pradesh government on Friday banned production, storage, distribution and sale of 'halal-certified' food products. The ban, however, will not be applicable on the products which require this certificate for export purposes.

As per official sources, the decision to ban such commodities was taken on the instructions of CM Yogi Adityanath who had issued instructions to the police department to take action against such companies indulging in fraudulent practices to acquire halal certification through forged documents.

The ban order released by the state government makes it clear that if medicines, medical equipment and cosmetics with halal certification found being produced, stored, distributed or even sold in the state, legal action would be initiated against the firm or person concerned involved in the practice.

Earlier, taking cognizance of the alleged fraudulent practice of according halal certification to commodities, the police lodged cases against many companies for selling 'halal-certified' products using fake documents to extract financial gains in the name of religion.

Halal certification indicates that a product has been prepared in accordance with the tenets of Islamic law and is believed to be pure.

As per sources, Halal India Private Limited Chennai, Jamiat Ulema Hind Halal Trust Delhi, Halala Council of India Mumbai and Jamiat Ulema Maharashtra Mumbai are some of the companies named in the FIR lodged by the police on the complaint of a trader, Shailendra Sharma, in Lucknow on Saturday. The FIR was lodged under various IPC sections.

6 die after consuming hooch in 'dry' Bihar, cops suspended

RAMASHANKAR @ Patna

AT least six persons died and another one is undergoing treatment at a hospital after consuming suspected hooch in Bihar's Sitamarhi district on the eve of Chhath festival.

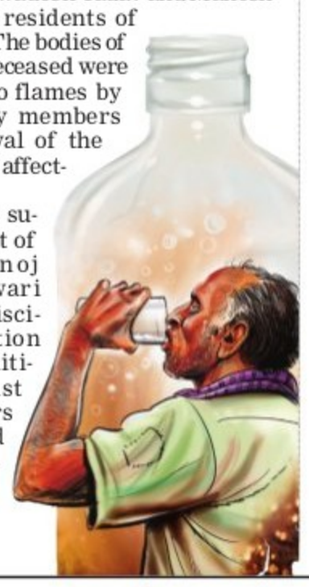
Manufacture, consumption, storage and sale of liquor is completely banned in the state under new Excise and Prohibition Policy 2016.

The tragedy struck at Solman Tola, Narhakala and Babu Narhat hamlets under Bajpatti block in Sitamarhi district. The first death was reported on Friday evening after the victims consumed spurious liquor at Mahuain village. The alleged liquor supplier is reported to be absconding after the incident.

Pupari sub-divisional police officer (SDPO) Vinod Kumar said that a police team visited affected villages after being informed about the consumption of liquor by some people on Friday evening. "Later police came to know that two of the victims were undergoing treatment at a local hospital," he added. According to police, one of the two victims had died before the police visited the hospital to collect information. Later the body of the deceased identified as Awadhesh Yadav was sent for post-mortem.

"The reason behind the death will be ascertained after the receipt of post mortem report, which is awaited," he said. The deceased have been identified as Rambabu Rai and Vikram Kumar, both residents of Solman Tola, Santosh Mahto and Raushan Kumar, residents of Narhar, Awadesh Yadav and Mahesh Yadav, both residents of Narhakala. The bodies of two of the deceased were consigned to flames by their family members before arrival of the police to the affected villages.

Sitamarhi superintendent of police Manoj Kumar Tiwari said that disciplinary action would be initiated against police officers concerned and chaukidar for lapses on their part.



Cops booked for stealing seized liquor from Guj police station

DILIP SINGH KSHATRIYA @ Ahmedabad

GUJARAT police has arrested six persons—two police personnel and four Gram Rakshak Dal (GRD) jawans—for allegedly stealing seized liquor worth ₹1.57 lakh from Bakor police station in Mahisagar district.

Assistant Sub-Inspector (ASI) Ranvatsinh Vaghsinh of Bakor in his complaint has stated that as the inspection by District Superintendent of Police (DSP) and Range Inspector General was scheduled, on November 13, he went to collect the seized liqour only to found that 125 bottles were missing along with 40 ceiling fans worth ₹40,000. According to reports, the liquor bottles, over 400, were seized from a pickup truck. The liquor was hidden beneath the ceiling fans in boxes, which were all seized.

During the preliminary inquiry it was found that the seized liquor and fan boxes were shifted from the locker room to an empty women cell. According to police, accused ASI Arvind Khant switched off the CCTV cameras and seized liquor was stolen from the women cell. The incident happened during the intervening night of October 25 and 26.

The other accused has been identified as Head Constable Lalit Parmar and GRDs—Khatubhai Damor, Somabhai Pagi, Ramanbhai Damor and Dipak Vankar.

The police launched a probe but went in vain. The two police officials were suspended while the four GRDs have been restigated. Meanwhile, Mahisagar SP Jaydeepsinh Jadeja has transferred 11 sub-inspectors as a "routine transfer".

'Switched off CCTV cameras'

The seized liquor along with ceiling fans, was first shifted from the locker room to an empty women cell and then stolen in the middle of the night after switching off the installed CCTV cameras. The incident came to notice when the seized items were checked by a police officer for scheduled inspection by seniors.

Rowers, sailors slog at Rising Sun Water Fest

Rowers and sailors from different parts of the country are proving their mettle at the Rising Sun Water Fest Revisiting Saraighat 2023. The second edition of the four-day marquee event, which features rowing, sailing and motor boating, is underway at the picturesque Deepor Beel in Guwahati and will conclude on November 20. Organised jointly by Indian Army and Assam government, the event also features cultural events with focus on the historical significance of Assam. The chief minister's office said the event is an initiative to boost tourism. Another goal is to promote water sports in the region.

Medal-winning athletes to get govt jobs

Athletes from Assam, who had won medals at the 37th National Games, will get Grade III jobs by the state government. The state has approved their appointment. CM Himanta Biswa Sarma had announced last year that athletes winning medals at the National Games would be provided with jobs based on their educational qualifications. The government's decision is expected to encourage budding sportspersons. Meanwhile, medal-winning athletes, who are already in the service, will get cash rewards, such as ₹50k for gold, ₹40k for silver medalists and ₹30k for bronze medalists.

AIUDF chief stirs a hornet's nest

All India United Democratic Front chief Maulana Badruddin Ajmal is in the eye of a storm for allegedly disrespecting the traditional Vaishnavite scarf "cheleng". At a recent event in central Assam's Morigaon district, he was greeted with a cheleng but he allegedly threw it away from his shoulder soon after. Condemning his action, the Assam Satra Mahasabha has filed an FIR against him. "We cannot tolerate such disrespect to the cheleng. We filed a complaint with the police demanding action against him," Bimal Chandra Borkakoti, secretary of the Mahasabha, said. The police said they were probing the case.

Shifa patients flee as Israel orders them out

Search for Hamas command centre inside hospital enters fifth day

KHAN YUNIS

HUNDREDS of people fled on foot Saturday after Israel's army ordered the evacuation of Gaza's main hospital where more than 2,000 patients, medics and displaced people were trapped by the war between Israel and Hamas.

An AFP journalist witnessed the movement, on a road leading south, but health officials in the Hamas-ruled territory said 450 patients unable to be moved remained at Al-Shifa hospital. The facility has become the focus of the war that is entering its seventh week after Hamas's October 7 attacks on southern Israel.

Israel has been pressing military operations inside the hospital, searching for the Hamas operations centre it says lies under the sprawling complex — a charge Hamas denies. Israel has vowed to destroy Hamas in response to the October 7 attacks which Israeli officials say killed about 1,200 people, most of them civilians, and saw about 240 people taken hostage.

The army's air and ground campaign has since killed 12,000 people, including 5,000 children, according to the Hamas government which has ruled Gaza since 2007. In Gaza City on Saturday morning, Israeli troops ordered over loudspeakers the evacuation of the Al-Shifa hospital "in the next hour", an AFP journalist at the scene reported.

Palestinians fleeing Gaza City and other parts of northern Gaza on Saturday | AFP

They called the hospital's director, Mohammed Abu Salmiya, to instruct him to ensure "the evacuation of patients, wounded, the displaced and medical staff, and that they should move on foot towards the seafront", he told AFP.

Israel has come under mounting pressure to back up its allegations that Hamas is using hospitals as command centres, a charge denied by Hamas, an Islamist movement with an armed wing. Al-Shifa hospital has also rejected the allegation. The United Nations estimated 2,300 patients, staff and displaced Palestinians were sheltering at Al-Shifa before Israeli troops entered the facility on Wednesday.

Israel has told Palestinians to move from the north of Gaza for their safety, but deadly air strikes continue to hit central and southern areas of the narrow coastal territory.

"They said the south was safer, so we moved," Azhar al-Rifi told AFP.

But her family was caught in another strike that killed seven relatives, including her five-year-old nephew. Nada Abu Hiya, aged eight, said she suffered the third bombing of the war at the Nuseirat refugee camp on Friday. AFP

Aluminium factory deep inside Lebanon struck

BEIRUT

ISRAEL on Saturday struck an aluminium factory deep in Lebanese territory, state media in Lebanon said, a week after its furthest strike since border skirmishes began last month.

"An enemy (Israeli) drone fired two missiles at an aluminium factory on the road between Toul and Kfour, setting it on fire," Lebanon's official National News Agency (NNA) said, without specifying whether there were casualties.

But Kfour mayor Khodr Saad told AFP two wounded civilians were transported to a hospital in the village.

The factory is about 15 kilometres from the Israeli frontier.

Weeks of deadly skirmishes between Israel and armed factions in Lebanon, mainly Hezbollah, have largely been limited to border areas since the Israel-Hamas war began on October 7.

NNA said it was the first strike in the Nabatiyeh region of Lebanon's south since the 2006 war between Israel and the Iran-backed Hezbollah movement.

It also reported Israeli artillery strikes and air raids against several areas in Lebanon's south. The factory bombardment comes after Israel on November 11 struck a pickup truck on a farm in the Zahrani area on Lebanon's coast, about 45 kilometres from the Israeli border, NNA said at the time, without reporting casualties.

Hezbollah on Saturday claimed to have shot down an Israeli Hermes 450 drone "using a surface-to-air missile", in addition to launching five other attacks on Israel's northern border.

While war continues in Gaza, "all resistance forces... will continue to put pressure on Israel," senior Hezbollah official Hashem Safieddine said during a speech. AFP

CHINESE SONAR PULSES LIKELY INJURED DIVERS: OZ DEFENCE CHIEF

SYDNEY

AUSTRALIAN navy divers were "likely" injured by sonar pulses emitted by a Chinese warship this week, the country's defence minister said Saturday, accusing Beijing of "unsafe and unprofessional" conduct at sea. Richard Marles said the HMAS Toowoomba — a long-range frigate — had been supporting United Nations sanctions enforcement efforts within Japan's exclusive economic zone.

The divers had plunged into the water to clear fishing nets from the ship's propeller, Marles said, when the vessel was approached by a Chinese destroyer warship. "Despite acknowledging Toowoomba's communications, the Chinese vessel approached at a closer range," he added in a statement that did not reveal the number of divers who were involved.

"Soon after, it was detected operating its hull-mounted sonar in a manner that posed a risk to the safety of the Australian divers, who were forced to exit the water."

The divers sustained minor injuries that doctors believed were "likely" linked to the sonar pulses, Marles said.

"This is unsafe and unprofessional conduct," he said.

"Australia expects all countries, including China, to operate their militaries in a professional and safe manner."

China and Australia have been working to patch up their once-close trading relationship after years of bickering and tit-for-tat reprisals.

Australian Prime Minister Anthony Albanese made a breakthrough trip to Beijing earlier this month, hailing the progress as "unquestionably very positive".

But tensions remain when it comes to security, as Australia draws closer to the United States in an effort to blunt China's expanding influence in the Asia-Pacific region. AFP

French senator accused of spiking MP's drink charged

PARIS

A French senator has been charged on suspicion of drugging a lower-house MP with a view to assaulting her, his lawyer said, in a case that has rocked France's parliament. Joel Guerriau was arrested on Thursday after the alleged assault attempt against Sandrine Josso, a source familiar with the case told AFP.

Josso felt ill after accepting a drink on Tuesday night at the Paris home of the 66-year-old senator, with whom she was not in an intimate relationship, prosecutors said.

A Paris investigator charged Guerriau with "administering without Sandrine Josso's knowledge a substance likely to alter her judgement or self-control, to commit a rape or sexual assault", his lawyer Remi-Pierre Drai said.

He was also indicted for "possession and use of substances classed as drugs" and placed under judicial supervision, the lawyer added.

French senator Joel Guerriau

The Paris prosecutor's office confirmed the charges and told AFP the senator was banned from visiting the home of the alleged victim and from contacting her or witnesses.

Tests revealed that Josso had ecstasy in her system, investigators said, prompting her to file the criminal complaint.

Guerriau was arrested and held in custody under caught-in-the-act rules allowing police to override parliamentary immunity, prosecutors said.

Broadcaster RMC, which first reported the story, said police had searched his office and home, where prosecutors confirmed they found ecstasy.

The senator and his alleged victim faced each other on Friday during two hours of joint questioning by investigators, a common practice in France known as a confrontation. Josso, an MP for the centrist MoDem party, was "in a state of shock," her lawyer Julia Minkowski said. AFP

SpaceX's mega rocket Starship launches for a test flight from Starbase in Boca Chica, Texas on Saturday | AP

Musk's Starship blows up in space minutes after launch by SpaceX

STARBASE

SPACEX launched its mega rocket Starship but lost both the booster and the spacecraft in a pair of explosions minutes into Saturday's test flight.

The rocketship reached space following liftoff from South Texas, but communication suddenly was lost. SpaceX officials said it appears the ship's self-destruct system blew it up over the Gulf of Mexico.

The flight came to an end as the ship's engines were almost done firing to put it on an around-the-world path. The first test flight in April also ended in an explosion. On Saturday, about three minutes into flight, the separated booster also exploded over the gulf. By then, though, its job was done.

Despite the failure, the approximately eight-minute flight lasted twice as long as April's test. At nearly 121 meters, Starship is the biggest and most powerful rocket ever built, with the goal of ferrying people to the moon and Mars.

"The real topping on the cake today, that successful liftoff," said SpaceX commentator John Insprucker. Added commentator Kate Tice: "We got so much data, and that will all help us to improve for our next flight."

SpaceX founder Elon Musk watched from behind launch controllers at the southern tip of Texas near the Mexico border, near Boca Chica Beach. At company headquarters in Hawthorne, California, employees cheered as Starship finally soared at daybreak.

The room grew quiet once it was clear that the spaceship had been destroyed and crashed into the gulf.

SpaceX had been aiming for an altitude of 240 kilometers, just high enough to send the bullet-shaped spacecraft around the globe before ditching into the Pacific near Hawaii about 1 1/2 hours after liftoff, short of a full orbit. AFP

Murati led OpenAI's work on ChatGPT

SAN FRANCISCO

OpenAI, the company that launched ChatGPT a year ago, said Friday it had dismissed CEO Sam Altman in a shock firing of a central figure in the AI revolution. Altman became a tech world sensation with the release nearly a year ago of ChatGPT, an artificial intelligence (AI) chatbot with unprecedented capabilities, churning out human-level content like poems or artwork in just seconds.

Altman will be replaced on an interim basis by Mira Murati, the company's chief technology officer, the statement said. Albanian-born Murati joined OpenAI in 2018 and went on to become its chief technology officer. She led the company's work on ChatGPT, Dall-E, and Codex while overseeing its research, product, and safety teams.

As per a report in the New York Times, for years she has worked behind the scenes at OpenAI. The report, quoting employees said though she has carried the title of CTO, Murati has more or less been functioning as the company's head of operations for long. She began her career as an intern at Goldman Sachs in 2011 and later went on to work for Zodiac Aerospace. She then spent about three years at Tesla where she was a senior product manager of Model X.

She is an advocate for the regulation of AI and has called on governments to play a greater role "in aligning on some basic safety standards for deployment of these models." Commenting on her role at OpenAI, Microsoft CEO Satya Nadella said, "She has a demonstrated ability to assemble teams with technical expertise, commercial acumen, and a deep appreciation for the importance of mission."

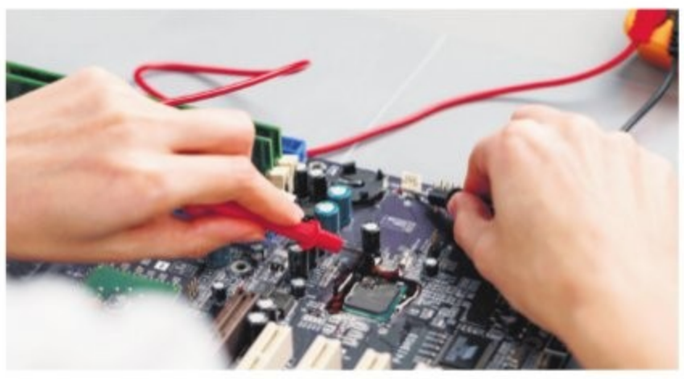
Govt approves application of 27 cos under PLI scheme

Approved applicants include Dell, Foxconn, HP, Lenovo, Flextronics

RAKESH KUMAR @ New Delhi



THE government on Saturday said it has approved the application of 27 companies, including Dell, HP, Foxconn and Lenovo under the production Linked Incentive (PLI) scheme for IT hardware.

Minister for Electronics and Information Ashwini Vaishnaw, while announcing the names of successful the applicants, said this move will make India a big force in manufacturing of personal computers (PCs), servers, laptops, and tablets.

"Nearly 27 companies are ready to start manufacturing on day zero and four companies will start within 90 days. These 27 companies will lead to ₹3,000 crore, direct employment of 50,000, and indirect employment of 1,50,000," said Vaishnaw.

The approved companies under the PLI scheme include Dell, Foxconn, HP, Lenovo, Flextronics, VVDL, Rising Stars Hi-Tech, India Sales, Padget Electronics, SOJO, VVDN, Goodworth Electronics, Neolync Tele Communications, Syrma SGS, Bhagwati Products, Netweb Technologies, Genus Electrotech, Sahasra, Hangsine, Riot Labz, Smile, Mega Networks, Plumage Solutions, HLBS Tech, Panache Digilife, RDP Workstations, Kaynes, INP Technologies, Optiemus, ITI, and Sancraft.

Vaishnaw said the government is evaluating the rest of the applications.

After receiving an overwhelming response to the PLI scheme for mobile manufacturing, the government had introduced a revised PLI scheme of ₹17,000 crore for IT hardware in May 2023. The objective of this initiative was to boost domestic production of laptops, tablets, all-in-one PCs, servers, and ultra-small form factor devices. However, the scheme didn't achieve the desired results. In August 2023, the government initially mandated the requirement of a licence for importing these items starting November 1, 2023. Later, it clarified that companies would only need to register themselves on the government portal for importing these items.

In October 2023, the government introduced an Import Management System, requiring companies to register and provide details regarding the quantity and value of imported IT hardware from overseas. The aim was to monitor shipments of laptops, tablets, and computers entering the country from trusted sources. After the government mandated firms to register for importing these items, the scheme received a substantial response.

Nearly 44 major tech companies, including all significant players, applied for the scheme. Among them, the government on Saturday approved the application of 27 companies.

"Companies that have not been approved, they are evaluating, and they will also come," said Vaishnaw.

FAKE VIDEOS

'Will meet social media players on deepfake issue'

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE government is set to meet with social media platforms Google, Twitter and Meta to discuss the issue of deepfakes.

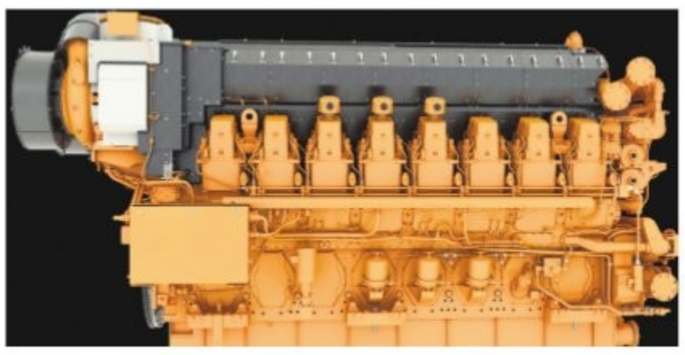
IT minister Ashwini Vaishnaw, while addressing media said companies risk losing their safe harbour immunity clause if they fail to take sufficient measures to address and remove deepfakes.

"They are taking steps...but we think that many more steps will have to be taken. And we are very soon going to have a meeting of all the platforms... Maybe in the next 3-4 days, we'll call them for brainstorming on that and make sure that platforms make adequate efforts for preventing it (deepfakes), and cleaning up their system," said Vaishnaw.

The government's action followed the viral spread of a deepfake video featuring actor Rashmika Mandanna on social media platforms. As the video went viral, many people, including Bollywood veteran Amitabh Bachchan, sought legal action against those responsible for the criminal act. Later, the government sent notice to these social media players on deepfakes issue. "The safe harbour clause, which most social media platforms have been enjoying...that does not apply if they do not take adequate steps for removing deepfakes from their platforms," added Vaishnaw.

'WELL-POSITIONED TO DELIVER ENGINES FOR NAVY WARSHIPS'

C SHIVAKUMAR @ Chennai



THE Russia-Ukraine conflict has disrupted the supply of marine gas turbine engines for the Indian Navy's warships, previously sourced mainly from the Ukrainian company, Zorya-Mashproekt. With supply chain disruptions from the ongoing conflict, the Indian Navy is now looking for local engine solutions. Building on this alignment with the 'Make in India' initiative and Defence Acquisition Policy, CAT Marine, a subsidiary of Caterpillar Marine, has signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with Garden Reach Shipbuilders & Engineers Ltd (GRSE), a premier shipbuilding company under the Ministry of Defence. In an interview with this newspaper, Revanna B L, governmental segment manager-Asia Pacific, Caterpillar Marine, highlights the significance of the MoU.

What sort of engines CAT Marine is proposing for the Indian Navy and Coast Guard?

Answer:: Caterpillar Marine is introducing medium-speed and high-performance engines tailored exclusively for the Indian Navy and Coast Guard. The Indian Navy requires powerful and reliable medium-sized marine engines that can adapt to diverse vessel sizes and missions, ensuring operational readiness, performance, and national security. We are well-positioned to deliver medium-speed engines tailored to the Indian Navy's specifications, ranging from 3 MW to 10 MW in power. These engines strike a balance between power and efficiency, making them versatile enough to meet the requirements of different vessel types and missions. Their adaptability and reliability in various operational scenarios make them a perfect fit for the navy's diverse needs.

What sets our Cat Marine engine design apart is its remarkable power density. This means our engines can deliver a significant amount of energy while maintaining a compact size, ensuring efficiency, durability, and reliability. We also focus on reduced emissions and noise, aligning with environmental regulations, and provide comprehensive technical support, including a robust supply chain, to keep naval vessels running smoothly. We are there throughout the engine's life cycle, from design to installation. Tell us more about the development of Hydrogen fuel cell ferry. When will India have its first hydrogen fuelled vessel?

Answer: Our global team isactively engaged in the development of a hydrogen fuel cell ferry, a promising technology for achieving zero-exhaust emissions in maritime transport. It has the potential to revolutionise the maritime industry by lowering emissions and providing efficient source of power.

These fuel cells produce electricity by combining hydrogen with oxygen, emitting only water as a byproduct, making them an attractive solution for reducing emissions and minimizing the environmental impact of maritime operations. While the development of a hydrogen-fueled electric vessel for India is a potential project that we could be exploring. Developing it depends on a variety of factors, including technological advancements, regulatory approvals, and the availability of necessary infrastructure.

How can advanced engine technologies contribute to making defence operations more sustainable and environmentally friendly?

Answer. In India, with its vast coastline and strategic maritime interests, the need for sustainable and efficient engines is important. This is particularly crucial for the Indian Navy, which operates in ecologically sensitive areas as well. The adoption of dual-fuel engine technology, capable of running on alternative fuels such as natural gas or biofuels, offers versatility and minimizes reliance on traditional fossil fuels. Such advancements and innovation in advanced engine solutions can ensure that defence operations are in tune with worldwide environmental goals.

Story of rags-to-riches and eventual fall

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

DURING the most of 1990s and 2000s, Subrata Roy, founder of vast business empire Sahara Group, was celebrated as India's success story. His rags-to-riches story added to his larger-than-life persona.

Among his employees, called members of Sahara Pariwar, Roy had a near cult-like following. Come the 2010s, things took a turn for the entrepreneur and his conglomerate. He was accused of running a ponzi-like scheme, which duped millions of households with billions of dollars. Roy, who just a few years back was a celebrated figure, was now being looked down upon. From court cases to serving jail time, his glory days were over and he remained out of the media spotlight during the last years of his life.

He died on November 14 at 75 following an extended battle with complications from metastatic malignancy, hypertension and diabetes. His funeral ceremony was a closed affair and there were barely any words of condolences from people who were thought to be his friends.

Rich folk's RobinHood

Born in 1948 in Bihar, Roy's early life was full of ups and downs. Even though he was born into a well-to-do family, things took a turn after the death of his father. Roy is said to have sold snacks on a scooter before taking over a struggling finance company called Sahara in 1978. A young Roy then steered the company, which at a point in time had a capital of only ₹2,000, to a conglomerate, which was seen in the realms of Tatas and Reliance.

A senior politician who has closely seen Roy's growth and eventual downfall described the businessman as Robinhood, but only for the rich people. "Sahara Group companies collected funds from crores of people from the hinterland and Roy spent these lavishly on politicians, movie stars and sports personalities," the politician said requesting anonymity.

He added that while the poor and middle-class were sold the Sahara dream, it was Roy's rich pals who were living the dream. "Roy had a fleet of personal jets, which were often used by his pals like one uses an Uber service now. They all stayed in his fancy properties. Roy saved a cinema superstar when his company went bankrupt. He funded politicians in their election campaigns and sponsored the national cricket team for years. Everyone, except for the millions of Sahara investors, benefitted from him," the politician said.

At its peak, Sahara owned a stake in a Formula One racing team and an IPL cricket team. The group also owned an airline, which was sold to Jet Airways and was a big real estate player. In the global arena, Sahara owned New York's landmark Plaza Hotel and London's iconic Grosvenor House.

Legal trouble & silent demise

Sahara Group faced scrutiny from regulators and courts after his group firms were accused of circumventing existing norms with ponzi schemes. After a detailed inspection it was found funds raised by two Sahara Group firms violated capital market rules and regulations, Sebi in 2011 ordered Sahara India Real Estate Corporation Ltd (SIREL) and Sahara Housing Investment Corporation Ltd (SHICL) to refund the money to the tune of ₹25,000 crore raised from 3 crore investors via certain bonds known as optionally fully convertible bonds (OFCDs).

Roy was arrested in 2014 after he failed to show up in court and spent a little over two years in jail. Since then, his name mostly appeared in cases related to refunds. His close pals from his glory days are said to have maintained a good social distance from him.

In 2020, Roy was again in the spotlight. However, this is something he would have not wanted. He was included in a Netflix series called 'Bad Boy Billionaires: India' along with Vijay Mallya, Nirav Modi and Ramalinga Raju. The four achieved predominant success in their businesses during their lifetime before being accused of corruption. Roy's episode was called "The World's Biggest Family", which showed how Roy took his Sahara India Pariwar conglomerate to dizzying heights before facing accusations of enticing poor investors into a pyramid scheme.

Shami's ancestral village to get a rural stadium

LUCKNOW: Sahaspur Alinagar, the ancestral village of Indian pacer Mohammed Shami, will get a rural stadium, the district magistrate of Amroha said on Saturday. The DM added that efforts will be made to invite Shami at the foundation-stone-laying event if he is available. The rural stadium in Sahaspur Alinagar will be spread over an area of 1.092 hectares.

They (India) have been a quality team, they have been on the march the whole tournament. No real weaknesses in their team, so looking forward to Sunday.

DESTINY BECKONS

12 years since the last World Cup victory, Rohit & Co will have one last go against Australia to get their hands on trophy

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ Ahmedabad

THE World Cup. Holy grail. Poisoned chalice.

In an Indian context, it has made and destroyed teams and individuals. It has wrecked relationships. Adults have bawled on live TV.

On a typical London summer day, a band of brothers surprised themselves. At Johannesburg, they weren't even allowed to dream. In dying light in Port of Spain, superstars were shellshocked. On a floodlit night in Mumbai, some of them made memories to last a lifetime.

The highest of highs. The lowest of lows.

Over the last eight years, ICC events have only caused heartburn. Australia prevailed in a one-sided semifinal in 2015. Pakistan cantered past in 2017. New Zealand have been a scourge over the last few years in all three formats.

Now, 15 men stand on the edge of the precipice. Between them and glory, immortality even, are familiar foes, Australia. While they were tipped to at least reach the final, few would have predicted their path.

They have handed shellackings, enjoyed big wins and exorcised demons with minimum of fuss. Watching on from the outside, it's been disconcerting. Reaching the final of a global event is not supposed to be this easy. Hello, where's the jeopardy? There's been more tension in wondering whether Virat Kohli would reach a 100 before reaching the target. In one match, KL Rahul wondered why he finished the chase with a six. "I could have hit a four and followed it up with a six for my 100," was his internal monologue. Probably.

The bowlers have operated with a joie de vivre you normally associate with a Cirque du Soleil show. They have come in and handed beatdowns that wouldn't be out of place in boys vs men's games.

Yet, for all the good work the team has done, legacies don't get written for reaching the final. Generations don't get inspired after a loss. It may be cruel but that's what separates knockout sport at the highest level. This is now the belly of the beast territory.

Skipper Rohit Sharma is well aware of the significance of the final but he will continue to do what he has done. Never one for Churchillian speeches, the processes that have brought the team this far will continue for one final day.

> I never thought it will happen. But things do happen if you wish for it. And if you dream big, all these things happen. So yeah, I'm just very happy to be here.
>
> — Rohit Sharma on leading India in a WC final

"I don't want them to change the thought process that they had before the start of the tournament," he said in the pre-match press conference. "All those things are clear. And I thought in this entire tournament, we were quite straightforward with that thought.

"... it will be nice to do (win the World Cup) it because we have worked hard for it. But again, we don't want to get too excited. A balanced atmosphere, balanced thinking at this stage will be nice."

The other thing that has worked for them throughoutsss this campaign has been their clutter-free approach to all matches. The players know why they are in the team and what's expected of them. Expect that role clarity to continue. "Till now, role clarity has played an important role. Whether we perform or not is another thing but as long as all the boys are playing, if it becomes clear, then the work becomes a bit easier. We put a lot of effort into playing with a clear mindset, identifying clear roles. Which boys will come and bat, which boys will bowl, which boys will stand in the slips... we had planned all of this. Till now, everything has been good. Hopefully, tomorrow (Sunday) will be the same."

While this contest will lack some of the animosity of the earlier contests between the two nations, make no mistake about what's at stake. India have dominated the financial landscape of the sport for at least the last decade but for all their financial might, they do not have the gongs to show for it.

There is also the Australia factor. Sure, this isn't 2003 where they were clearly superior and that superiority came through on the field. In fact, at some level, India have assumed that position at the very top of the cricketing food chain. They have gone to Australia and beaten them twice in the two-Test series. However, beating them in a final would be a symbolic moment.

There will be 1,32,000 rammed into the Stadium to see if the passing-of-the-torch comes to fruition. Needless to say, there will be a blue wall of noise. How does Cummins plan to deal with it? "Embrace it," he said. "In sport, there's nothing more satisfying than hearing a big crowd go silent and that's the aim for us."

On the tournament's 46th day, Indian fans will want to live through eight of the nine navarasas, an Indian theatre term, that was reimagined in a sporting context by ICC for this edition.

Joy. Power. Respect. Pride. Bravery. Glory. Wonder. Passion.

The ninth is something this team hasn't felt over the last one-and-a-half months.

Anguish.

Will it be the holy grail or the poisoned chalice?

THE BIG SHOWDOWN

STANDING BETWEEN INDIA AND A THIRD ICC ODI WORLD CUP TITLE ARE THE FIVE-TIME CHAMPIONS, AUSTRALIA. A LOOK AT THE MARQUEE CLASH...

ROHIT VS STARC

The last time a rampaging captain-cum-opener had a made a World Cup statement, Mitchell Starc rearranged Brendon McCullum's stumps in the opening over of a final (2015). This feels like one of the pivotal battles within the battle. If Rohit can thrive during the powerplay, advantage could well be with the hosts.

BUMRAH VS HEAD

Jasprit Bumrah has seldom been hit in the powerplay. Openers have either respected him way too much or have lost their wicket. Head, though, will look to make a statement. He will try to take him down. If Bumrah, who has bowled an obscene number of dots in his first spell, can dismiss him in the first skirmish, the visitors will instantly be on the back foot.

ZAMPA'S MIDDLE-OVERS ROLE

The last time Adam Zampa played against India on a responsive surface, he wasn't feeling it. KL Rahul cut him behind square with a lot of success and the leg-spinner had lost his radar. But he has grown into the tournament and is now the second leading wicket-taker with 22. Both Shreyas and Rahul will be lying in wait.

USED SURFACE

The strip in play is going to a used surface. It was used once before for the India v. Pakistan game on October 14. It's going to be a black soil surface.

Cummins' Australia on cusp of securing their WC legacy

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ Ahmedabad

AUSTRALIAN captains have a way with words. The language can be colourful. If Michael Clarke's 'get ready for a broken f arm' lives in infamy, Ricky Ponting's not-so-subtle sledges are not far behind. Steve Waugh could make people sweat by his mere presence. Allan Border used fruity language all the time.

There is one common theme that links all of them. Captains who delivered the ODI World Cup for Australia. On Sunday, Pat Cummins has the opportunity to join this illustrious list. But his path to the top has been so different. He's calm, understated, isn't one to weaponise press conferences to send a message, is a seamer as opposed to a batter and readily wears a smile after beating the bat. While some of this is a product of the prevailing cricketing ecosystem in Australia (the sometimes unpalatable behaviour changed following sandpapergate), he's built a team in his own image.

And his image is something Australian cricket has taken getting used to. He's a climate change activist (the anti-woke Australian brigade loves to hate him because of his stance on several issues). "Go woke, you choke," was a particularly infamous one-liner thrown at him after a disappointing outing during last year's T20 World Cup opener against New Zealand. He's read up about racism in the Australian context. He's taken on Justin Langer, a chum of the all-conquering Test side of the noughties, during the former's stand-off with the players. He has tried to be an inclusive captain (he asked his teammates to put away the champagne so that Usman Khawaja could be involved in the celebrations post last year's Ashes).

These may be small gestures but you usually don't associate Australian captains with gestures like these. They usually are the pantomimes. Cummins is more of a diplomat.

That side was out again during the pre-match press conference on Saturday. He kept repeating how well-rounded a side India are. It's a far cry from what Ponting said before the 2007 semifinal against South Africa. 'If we can get Kallis in there early, I don't think they can get off to the same start," he had said. "... we can restrict him." True to form, Australia got Kalls in after 15 legal deliveries. He was dismissed for five off nine. Mental disintegration on point.

Yet, zoom out for a bit and Cummins is as Australian in other ways. While he may lack the hubris or the unpleasantness, he possesses the single most important trait needed to succeed at this level. Chutzpah. And a bloody-mindedness to get things done. At Edgbaston five months ago, Cummins stood tall to guide them home with the bat in The Ashes. He held his side of the bargain when Glenn Maxwell was tearing into the Afghanistan attack a few weeks ago. For a third time, he held his own with the bat, this time in the semifinals a few days ago. That's before you even talk about his primary skills as a bowler or his secondary skills as a captain.

When 2023 dawned, he had a full in tray. A series in India. Retain the Ashes. Qualify for and win the World Test Championships in England. Win the ODI World Cup. He played a big role in retaining the Ashes. They qualified for and beat India in the final of the WTC. The green and gold are 100 overs away from capping off an unreal year with more gold. "It's been a huge year," he said during the pre-match press conference. "Three or four marquee events. "Some of the guys have probably spent less than a couple of weeks in their own bed since the end of the Aussie summer. One thing that's stayed consistent has been the morale of the group. The guys have been awesome. To put ourselves in a position like this, it would just top off an incredible year and probably a career-defining year that a lot of us will look back on in years to come."

The one thing missing in Cummins' CV is his white-ball effectiveness. While he's already in the conversation for an all-time Test XI, his one-day numbers are middling. An economy of 5.31 while striking at 32.5 over 87 games. At this World Cup, he has gone at over six per over while striking once every 36 balls across 10 games. The wickets (13) have come but he doesn't have that one memorable performance with the ball.

He will not find a better time to produce magic.

Gill ready to come out of shadows

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ Ahmedabad

ROHIT Sharma has been belligerent. Virat Kohli has done Kohli things. Shreyas Iyer has accepted his responsibilities of finding boundaries through the middle-overs. KL Rahul has played the situation, finding the gears needed as finisher. In short, they have been India's four horsemen of the batting apocalypse.

The person hoping to join this conversation is Shubman Gill. He isn't as rapid as Rohit or as accomplished as Kohli or as six-hitting as Iyer or a finisher like Rahul. What he has, though, is combining bits from the four. Coming into the World Cup, Gill displayed that. Before he fell foul to dengue, a medical condition which can become life-threatening without proper care, the opener was best placed to take down a longstanding Sachin Tendulkar record — most ODI runs in a calendar year. The 1,894 runs he had amassed in 1998 had stood but Gill had 1,230 a week before the first game against Australia. His year was filled with one match-winning performance after another. After beginning his year with a crisp 70 against Sri Lanka, he made three 100s (including one double) in four games. He rounded out the tune-up fixtures with a fine 100 against Australia. During his bull-run, he had shown why he was considered the heir apparent to Virat Kohli. If anything, Gill wasn't the future. He was the present. It was time for the prince to assume the lead role. What better stage than a home World Cup for the country's latest batting prodigy to come of age. However, Gill has, to slightly tweak a phrase from the Batman, done his work while living in the shadows. It's easy to forget but Gill's first ball back since recovering from dengue was an off-drive to the boundary off Shaheen Shah Afridi. While Rohit Sharma's tone-setting 86 off 63 was front and centre, Gill set the pace with four boundaries. Do you remember his run-a-ball 92 against Sri Lanka? Probably not because the Indian bowlers produced a generational display of pace-bowling to bowl out the opposition for 55. His 32-ball 51 against Netherlands was a boundary-hitting masterclass. It felt illegal to be paid to be at the M Chinnaswamy Stadium. To be honest, it's always like that whenever he bats for it's a masterclass in aesthetics. Like watching Vincent van Gogh go about creating The Starry Night.

Shubman Gill | SHIBA PRASAD SAHU

On Sunday, Gill, who could well be the youngest of the 22 men when they stand side by side for the anthems, will look to create his own poem. He has had a line here, a verse there and a stanza somewhere in between. The time is ripe for an epic.

Midge, Mitch and medals: A World Cup love story

KALYANI MANGALE @ Chennai

NO. 60 Jolimont Street, Jolimont, Victoria, Cricket Australia's Main Office in Melbourne, has probably seen many ICC trophies over the years. So much so that Beth Mooney, Player of the Final from 2023 Women's T20 World Cup, acknowledged it in her press conference adding, "Hopefully we can keep piling up those trophies in Jolimont Street."

That is exactly what it is at this moment. A pile of trophies. Their senior men's and women's teams share 12 ODI World Cups, seven T20I World Cups, two Champions Trophies, and one World Test Championship trophy between them. Some 900 km away from Jolimont Street, in Sydney, there is one particular household that has played some role in half of those triumphs.

Alyssa Healy or Midge as she is affectionately known and Mitchell Starc sure have their winner's medals to show for it. And former Australian captain Lisa Sthalekar knows what sets them apart as cricketers in the moments that matter the most. "They are highly competitive," Sthalekar told this daily. "They seek those big occasions as opportunities. They don't necessarily shy away from it. They want to be the person to break open the game, whether it be with the bat or with the ball. Because sometimes when the pressure's on, there are some players who are happy just to kind of fold in behind other people. But I think those two are very competitive and lead from the front," she added. That competitiveness has played a crucial role in their personal performances at the highest level. Starc was the Player of the Tournament in 2015 with his 22 wickets across eight matches, while Healy has bagged the same award on two occasions, once in the 2018 T20 World Cup and four years later in 2022 in the women's ODI WC. While Healy's exceptional ball striking has helped her team take the game head-on with the bat, Sthalekar believes Starc's evolving game makes him one of the best bowlers in the world. "I think he's certainly over the years been able to learn new skills, learn to adapt, and work hard on his technique. So his strengths are his pace and the ability to swing it. And then obviously, with the red ball, he's kind of brought in that wobble scene which has made him more effective for right-handers. He keeps evolving," Sthaleker said. That is why, even after a quiet tournament by his standard in India this year after 27 wickets in the previous edition in England, Starc is still one of those players who can change the game for Australia.

Mitchell Starc and Alyssa Healy have several ICC Trophies between them

Even with their busy schedules for their respective teams, Healy and Starc are a constant presence at each other's fixtures. Whether it was Starc leaving his tour of South Africa early to witness his wife smash a record-breaking half-century at the MCG in the T20 World Cup final or Healy supporting her husband during the WTC final earlier this year. We will soon find out if Australia will add another trophy to that pile at Jolimont Street. No matter what happens in Ahmedabad, many cricketing nations still need a lot of time to catch up with the medal cabinet of the "Stealy" household in Sydney.
